Hog cholera hits eastern herds, federal quarantines imposed

By MELISSA PIPER

LANCASTER — The swine ustry was jarred this k when hog cholera, a hly infectious viral ease affecting that par- ular livestock species y, was confirmed in several herds along the eastern seaboard.

As of publication time five herds in the Glouchester County area of New Jersey had been affected along with two herds in Massachusetts and one herd in Rhode Island. All counties affected in these states had been placed under federal quarantine by the USDA on Wednesday evening.

Last Saturday, (Feb. 28) the disease had been found in three herds in New Jersey involving about 5350 hogs. At that time the New Jersey Department of Agriculture slapped a "hold order" on all swine movements within the state but when subsequent herds came down with the disease the federal quarantine quickly replaced

Fertilizer situation described

LANCASTER — "There s a very real shortage of tilizer the last two or ee years, and we were in a y unrealistic situation . . . this year we're in a listic situation and supplies of N, P, and K will be adequate," a marketing specialist from Chevron Chemical Co. told a group of farmers here earlier this week.

Herb Roup, Chevron representative, was one of two guest speakers at a dinner meeting sponsored by Chevron and P. L. Rohrer of Smoketown.

Distribution is the problem fertilizer manufacturers and dealers are concerned with. According to Chevron spokesmen, as well as others from various companies across the nation, a shortage of railroad cars may develop. It was explained that this is particularly true since grain exports have and

Agriculture to be saluted March 22

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - The nation's farmers, rural towns and agribusiness firms will observe American Agriculture Day on March 22, 1976.

Designed to promote better understanding of U.S. agriculture by consumers, elected officials and other nonfarm groups, American Agriculture Day is an opportunity for everyone connected with agriculture to explain its accomplishments, problems and opportunities to their city neighbors.

Planned, coordinated and sparked by members of the National Agri-Marketing Association (NAMA), Ag Day '76 is a nationwide "do-your-own-thing" celebration.

"From the response we've been getting, Ag Day

Cartoon feature added

Beginning with this issue, LANCASTER FARMING will regularly feature a rural humor cartoon called "Rural Route." Drawn by free-lance artist, Thomas Armstrong of Sellersville, Pa., this new feature is designed to tickle and refresh our hearts and minds. Armstrong is a 1955 Penn State graduate with a degree in animal science. He was a member of the livestock judging team and had at one time been herdsman for one of the largest purebred Angus herds in the East. Then eight years in agricultural business with a farm machinery dealer brought him in direct contact with the farmer.

Armstrong describes "Rural Route" as a cartoon which will feature a farm family, with the farmer as the main character. The farmer is an honest, hard working man with perhaps an above average dislike for bureaucracy, red tape, and the interference by others in his chosen profession. Readers will find the new feature on page 10.

PROGRESSIVE FARMERS WANT PROFESSIONAL CONSULTATION

1. Is pH a false indicator of calcium levels in your soils?
2. Is sulphur holding back the yield, protein content and digestibility of your crops?
3. Is excessive magnesium what makes your land so wet and late?

If your present soil tests don't answer these questions, you will profit by our technical help. SOIL TESTS ARE DIFFERENT! Our complete soil analysis will help you balance soil fertility, which means more efficient cropping and feeding - less bought feed and fertilizer - more yield and profit.

WE SELL NO PRODUCTS — ONLY RECOMMENDATIONS

There is a reason why progressive farmers with sharp pencils hire us year after year for soil analyses and recommendations. We save them dollars. Balance makes crops to be proud of. Winter is the time to talk it over with:

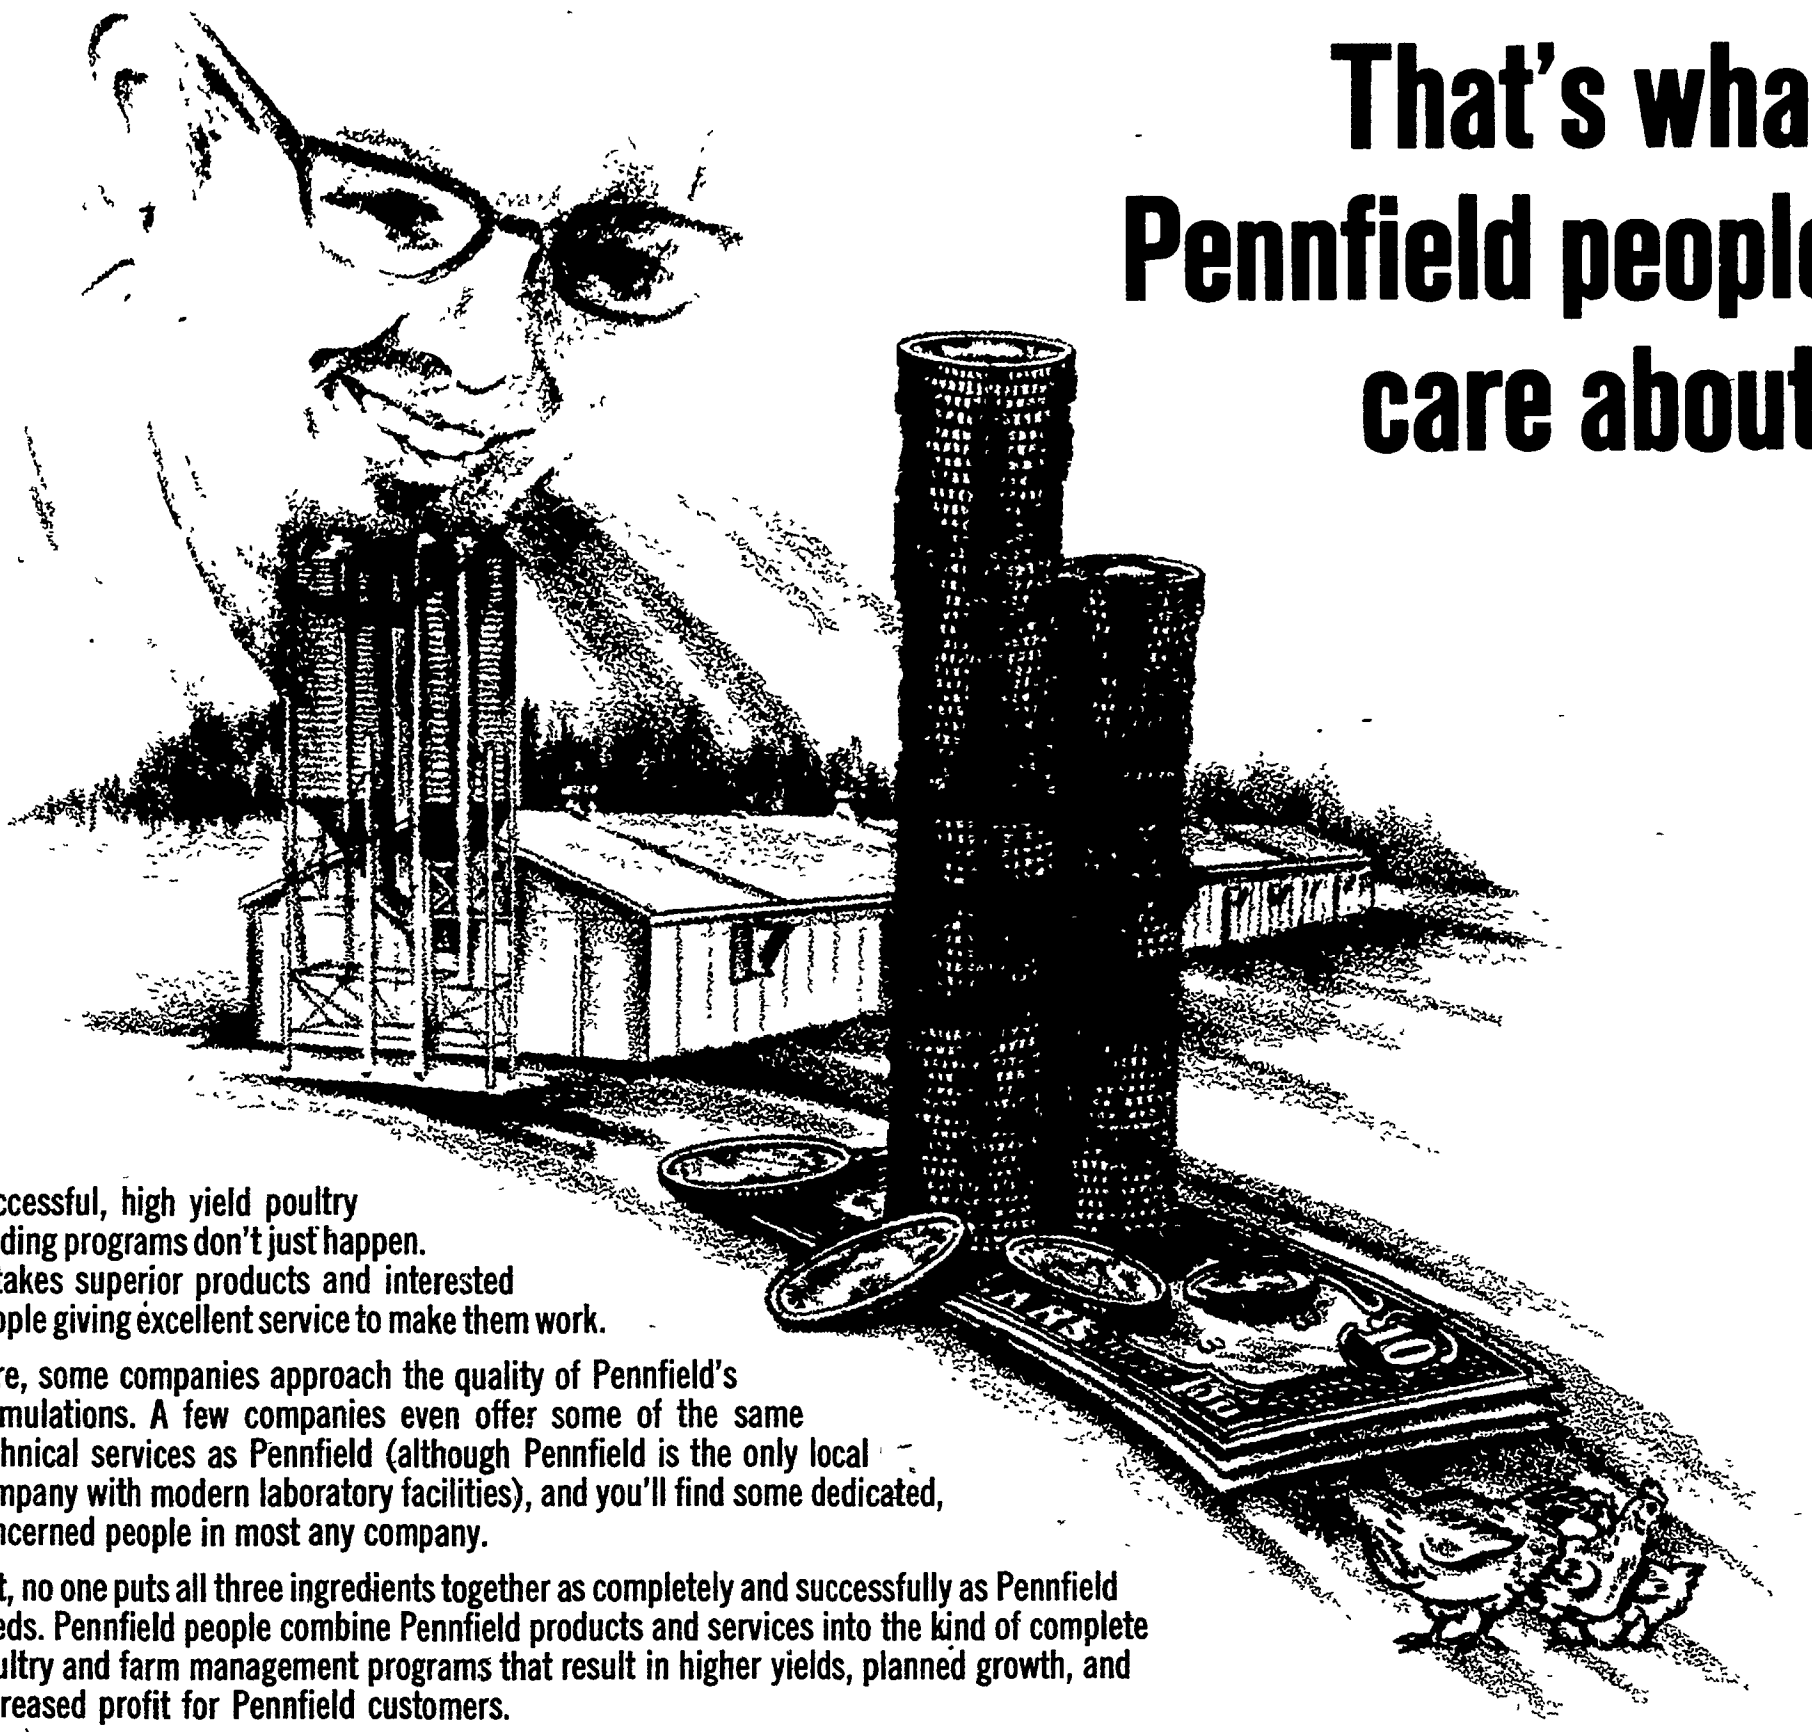
Your POULTRY PRODUCTIVITY, your PROFITABILITY.



That's what Pennfield people care about.

Successful, high yield poultry feeding programs don't just happen. It takes superior products and interested people giving excellent service to make them work.

Sure, some companies approach the quality of Pennfield's formulations. A few companies even offer some of the same technical services as Pennfield (although Pennfield is the only local company with modern laboratory facilities), and you'll find some dedicated, concerned people in most any company.

But, no one puts all three ingredients together as completely and successfully as Pennfield Feeds. Pennfield people combine Pennfield products and services into the kind of complete poultry and farm management programs that result in higher yields, planned growth, and increased profit for Pennfield customers.

Chemists, nutritionists, production personnel, veterinarians, computer technicians, business and marketing analysts, deliverymen, quality control specialists, financial experts, and more . . . led by your Pennfield Area Manager who can put them all together to develop and service a customized, profit-oriented program for you. These are Pennfield people. And, Pennfield people make Pennfield Feeds a better buy.

Want to know how Pennfield people can work for you to improve your yields and profit? Complete and mail this coupon for a no obligation survey.

Zero MILKING SYSTEM OFFERS AGAINST ?

Dairymen! LET US CHECK YOUR MILKING MACHINE'S PERFORMANCE!

- WITH OUR DETCO GRAPH MACHINE

NO CHARGE! NO OBLIGATION!

If you have a problem of teat and udder erosion in your herd — chances are you are milking with unstable vacuum And, as more and more animal health authorities have been agreeing that many teat and udder injuries — which have contributed to the spread of mastitis — have been caused by unstable milking vacuum you should have your milking machine's performance checked

We'll be happy to do this for you with our DETCO Graph Machine It's a remarkable, new invention that records vacuum readings at the milker units attached to the teats, recording the milking vacuum and pulsating vacuum simultaneously And tells you in easy-to-understand graph form, as shown in the photo above, if you are milking with unstable vacuum at the teat end

Increasing the size of your vacuum pump and the size of your air and milk lines are good recommendations But if you still don't have stable vacuum at the teat ends — investigate our ZERO CONCORD Twin-Vacuum Pipeline Milking System It's a combination of a revolutionary pipeline milking machine and the ZERO Completely-Automated Vacuum Bulk Milk Cooler It was designed especially to milk with stable vacuum at the teat ends to prevent teat and udder injuries caused by milking with unstable vacuum And has many other advantages

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

BY DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

Our national disgrace

One of the things which never fails to amaze visitors and immigrants to the United States is this nation's abundance of food. Most of us can eat what we please and as much as we please. That's the positive side of our horn of plenty

The negative side is our national disgrace — the constant waste of food. It's something which shocked my family when we first came to America 20 years ago and continues to bewilder us to this day. But I'll put my own thoughts on that subject aside for the time being and let students at the University of Arizona make the point for me They recently undertook a project to determine how much food was being wasted in Tuscon, population 360,000. Here's what they found:

Working with city trash collectors, students collected random samples of garbage and inspected it for food content. Using a little bit of arithmetic and even less of the "new math," they estimated that residents in the town annually discard some 950 tons of food — most of it edible It was valued at $9 to $11 million!

One week's garbage would provide enough edible meat, poultry, and fish to feed 3,000 people for a week. More than half of the discarded food was straight waste — whole slices of bread, large pieces of edible meat, etc. On an overall average, the students calculated that Tuscon's residents wasted 10 per cent of their food purchases. The middle class group was the most wasteful of all, they determined. Food waste in their neighborhood approached 25 per cent.

What's true for Tuscon is basically true for every other community in the United States. What's more, it's true for a lot more than just food. We also waste fuel, energy, building materials, resources, time, and money — to name a few.

Yes, they are high enough

Dairy support prices did not need further upward adjustment recently, as had been requested by some farm organizations. The simple reasons for this are that: 1. many dairymen themselves admit that they are in a good profit situation with present prices; 2. a further increase in prices could lead to an unfavorable response from consumers — something that should be avoided; and 3. increased prices could lure farmers to go into dairying and oversupply the market which would result in a collapse of prices.

Milk prices in relation to feed costs are now more in line than they've ever been in recent years. Profits are being made again. Comparing today's milk prices to feed costs we find that the money received for 100 pounds of milk will just about pay for 200 pounds of grain if bulk prices are considered. That gives us a milk-feed price ratio of close to 2.0 — the best it's ever been. By comparison, 20 years ago it was only 1.28 and 10 years ago it stood at 1.40. The late 60's and early 70's were good years according to USDA figures when the milk-feed price ratio went as high as 1.75. But it dropped again quickly until it hit 1.35 in 1974 and 1.44 last year. Looking at it in another way, the price of 100 pounds of grain went up roughly 80 per cent in the past 10 years while milk prices gained by roughly 120 per cent.

Granted, various other costs of production have gone up too, but by and large the profit margin is now sufficient, and to ask for more at this time would be a step more in line with George Meany's policies rather than those of a proud and efficient American farmer.

Ag Day is every day

March 22 has been set aside as Agriculture Day . "a vigorous, unified effort to promote better understanding between rural and urban Americans"

Think about that for a second Isn't that what's needed every day? I believe so

Farmers farm 365 days of the year, we all eat every day Anytime a farmer comes into contact — either directly or indirectly — with a city person, he should make an effort to promote agriculture That's every day And it should be done in a sincere, informative manner Not in an arrogant or even angry fashion which is characteristic of many union bosses

After all, how much do farmers really know about the city man's way of life? Too often we look at his salary and fringe benefits without paying attention to his disadvantages. Too often we remember only the messy cow tails which slapped us in the face, the long hours, the high investments, and bad weather, while forgetting the rewards and blessings of farming.

This is not written in defense of the non-agricultural worker's attitudes and wage earning power, but to illustrate that the door to better understanding swings both ways It shouldn't exclude the farmer, and

FORMULA FOR GREATNESS

Lesson for March 7, 1976

Background Scripture: Matthew 19 through 21:5.

Devotional Reading: Matthew 19:23-30.

I have been to the top of the Eiffel Tower, the Empire State Building, Chicago's Sears Building (at this writing the world's tallest), the Centennial Arch in St. Louis, I have stood within the vastness of St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome and visited and even greater number of other manmade wonders. Still, no structure which man has conceived and constructed has so impressed me as the Great Pyramid at Giza in Egypt.

At the pinnacle

Experts disagree on its percise purpose, but the great structure seems obviously intended as a magnificent monument to the greatness of Pharaoh Cheops. Ironically, however, it is not so much Cheops who is remembered today as the monument itself.

For many people the pyramid is an appropriate symobl for the concept of greatness. The great man, they believe, stands at the very pinnacle of the pyramid. The "not-so-great" stand at varying levels below, trying constantly to climb a little higher on the ever-steeper structure. Thus, when we think in terms of success or greatness, we speak of "climbing higher" and "moving up."

It is often erroneously assumed that Jesus didn't understand human nature. But Jesus understood human nature better than anyone else. He knew that most people dreamed of "greatness" - or at least of not "greatness," then of success. Contrary to what many people might assume, Jesus saw nothing wrong with wanting to be "great," . . . so long as we go about it in the right manner!

The inverted pyramid

Several months ago I stayed in a most unusual hotel in the city of Tunis on the North African coast. The Hotel Du Lac is actually an inverted pyramid - a pyramid resting on its pinnacle and with its broad base standing high in the air!

This strange building reminded me of something George Arthur Buttrick once said: "Christ's idea of greatness is like an inverted pyramid; the nearer to the peak, the greater the burden, and the more people are carried in love."

This is exactly what Jesus was speaking about: " . . . whoever would be great among you must be your servant, and whoever would be first among you must be your slave " (Matthew 20· 26,27). It is all right for a man to strive for greatness so long as he knows what greatness really is!

And what is the formula for true greatness? Jesus both proclaimed that formula and demonstrated it with his own life: "even as the Son of man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many" (20:28).

The world seems addicated to the wrong understanding of "greatness," for many believe that it means to "lord it over" another. In both Jesus' words and life, however, we find the missing formula for true greatness: . . . not to be served, but to serve"!

To Stress Swine Sanitation

Hog Cholera has been diagnosed at our eastern border once again. Dr. Homer Forney of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, told us at a livestock meeting last week that three herds of hogs have been quaranteed in New Jersey; since that time we have learned of outbreaks in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. This is a serious threat to our local hog industry and every person connected to swine production and marketing should be extremely careful in the most strict sanitation practices. Garbage should be well cooked when it is being fed to hogs. Traffic from public places back to the farm should be done very carefully; footwear should be well scrubbed and disinfected before entering any hog house or fattening pen. Sick hogs should be promptly reported to the local veterinarian. The hog enterprise is big business in this part of the state and reckless management can hurt many people.

To Plan Forage Program

At the recent Dairy Day program Dick Adams, Dairy Extension Specialist from Penn State, discussed the merits of a good forage feeding program; he stressed that the starting place was the ability to produce top quality forages on the farm. If the dairymen can't produce them, then he won't have any to feed his cattle. He referred to corn silage as one of the most economical roughage feeds for dairy or beef. The making of hay crops into silage was one way to reduce field and weather losses, and preserve maximum feed nutrients. His summary of the hundreds of forage tests run at Penn State should have been very useful to the 300 dairymen attending this all-day session.

To Be Prepared

Recent weather conditions have brought many farmers and gardeners out of their winter planning and put them into the "spring fever" class. At our Extension Office we have had several calls about planting garden crops, straight seedings of alfalfa, and other early chores. The press is interested in forecasts about possible fruit and ornamental damage. Since this is only the first week in March, severe cold weather is still possible; the extent of the damage will depend upon the severity of the weather. I'd discourage the planting of any seeds or crops this early, but I would be prepared to get the early jobs done by the middle of March, if warm weather conditions prevail.

To Buy the Best

Many livestock producers have to invest in a new herd sire every one to two years. This is a major decision and a very important one if the herd or flock is to improve. I talked with Fred Frey of Quarryville, well known Angus breeder, about this several weeks ago and learned that Fred is still trying to buy the best Angus bulls available in the country; his aim is to use a bull that will correct some of the faults in his cow herd. This sounds like good herd breeding so will pass it along to others. The right herd sire can "make or break" a herd or flock. We urge buying the very best according to performance testing results, if you want to move ahead.

Milk orders altered

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has recommended amending the Eastern Ohio - Western Pennsylvania federal milk marketing order to increase the charge to handlers on overdue accounts.

The recommendation is based on a Dec. 3 hearing in Cleveland which was requested by Dairylea Cooperative, representing a substantial number of dairy farmers serving the market.

The recommendations appeared in the February 27th Federal Register. Comments may be filed, in four copies, until March 13, with the Hearing Clerk, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, where the public may review them.

Copies of the recommended decision may be obtained from Market Administrator C. C. Taylor, P.O. Box 30128, Cleveland, Ohio 44130; or from the Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

that's why Ag Day is a terrific and laudable idea. Its only improvement would be for all farmers to participate in an every-day type of "PR" program with a positive attitude.

The National Agri-Marketing Association, which came up with the Ag Day idea and is donating creative and organizational talents valued at close to $250,000, asks farmers:

"Who'll be heard ... the people with the facts, or some group grinding its ax?"

In the long run, it's the farmer's decision. Which is where it belongs. I hope you'll choose to do your part and that it's in the direction for better understanding on both sides of the fence.

A NEW PROVEN TECHNOLOGY

- Saves Energy ... Costs as little as 3-4 ¢ per bushel.
- Increases corn weights ... Get up to 10% more grain by weight from your bin.
- Preserves corn quality ... controlled natural curing with GRAINLAMPS doesn't vaporize kernel ingredients, doesn't deteriorate starch quality. See GRAINLAMP dried corn and see the difference. Better than cribbed corn! Better feeding results.
- Non-stop harvest. The GRAINLAMP system eliminates batch-drying bottlenecks at harvest-time. Non-stop filling ... like a corn-crib. For the big producer and the small grower.

Dress making scheduled

If you are still planning to make a bicentennial dress, plan to make it as authentic as possible. According to A. Joan Lamberson, Extension Home Economist, the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State University is offering a class on "Making An Authentic Bicentennial Costume." The classes will be held March 10 and 17, 7-8:30 p.m. in the York Mall Community Room. The first class will "set the scene" for fashion in 1776 and will include a study of fashion, including men's accessories, and caps of that period. The second class will show you how to adapt patterns or garments for your costumes, selecting appropriate fabrics, trims and construction tips for making your costume like it would have been made in 1776.

Mrs. Virginia Kent, former manager of Gates House - Plough Tavern, Log House and Bonham House, will conduct the classes. She has done extensive research on 18th century women's clothes and designed and made costumes for the guides at the Restorations in York.

York Co. student turns hobby into family business

By MELISSA PIPER

HELLAM — As a youngster, Jody Patterson always dreamed of having a horse. After much coaxing and gentle reminding his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Patterson, helped to make his wishes come true and over the years, Jody has seen his interest in horses grow from two family pets to several registered quarter horses.

The Pattersons moved to a 12-acre farm near Hellam, York R11, four years ago and have begun raising, training and showing registered quarter horses as a small family business.

Cleaning tack is just one of the many jobs included in raising horses. Here Jody takes a cloth to one of his western saddles.

Jody, 17, along with his sister, Jennifer, age 23, have put a lot of time and effort into training and showing the horses they now own and have won several awards at the Pa. Livestock Exposition and the Penn National Horse Show. The youths show in the western equitation classes and also in the halter competitions.

As a member of the Eastern York FFA Chapter, Jody has included the horses in his projects along with field corn and fattening beef animals. Although the youth has not taken work experience to come home in the afternoons, after school he can be found working with the animals themselves or helping to complete a new stable unit.

"I try to work as much as I can with the horses when I get home," Jody noted.

"We do get home relatively early and it has helped me get jobs done around the farm."

Jody takes care of almost every aspect of the horse operation including training and maintenance and refers to cleaning the stables as the most "tiresome" duty required.

The FFA member also has a keen eye for judging horses and was the third place individual in competition at Penn State last year. His victory was at State FFA Days where he has also placed high individually in the livestock judging competitions. Jody has judged horses for 4-H in York County as another youth activity.

Jody was a charter member of the "Horse 'n Round" County Club which formed about two years ago, and served the group as treasurer. He is also a member of the American Quarter Horse Association and the Pa. Quarter Horse Association.

Received Keystone Degree

Jody has spent four years in FFA work and has been treasurer and parliamentarian. Committee work has also been on his list of activities. This past January, Jody was one of the recipients of the Keystone Farming Degrees, the highest FFA degree awarded in the state. "It was a goal I have been working for ever since I joined FFA," the youth explained. "I was certainly happy that I got it before leaving the organization."

The Eastern York student is still finishing his senior year in high school, but keeps busy not only with his horses but with building a new stable area.

Jody's father, who is a stone mason, and the youth have begun building the barn unit during their free time. The new area will include several box stalls and a small observation area for visitors. Jody is quite proud of the stable unit and is waiting anxiously for it to be finished. "We've worked hard and it will be good to have it completed soon," the youth remarked.

Jody Patterson spends much of his free time working with his Quarter horses. Jody is a senior at Eastern York School in Wrightsville.

Although the student would like to continue working with his Quarter horses, he noted that locating a full time job would probably be his first consideration following graduation in the spring. But as with many young people, Jody has a lot of interests and the youth has planned a hiking trip down the Appalachian Trail before becoming employed full time.

Jody has certainly seen his dream come true but not without a lot of hard work and a genuine love for what he was doing. A friendly lick on his shoulder reminds Jody that the horses appreciate his care and attention.

TUG OF WAR

First it was oxen and horse pulls, animals putting their weight against wagons or sledges loaded with rock.

Then it was full size farm tractors, active horsepower against the static drag of, again, loads of rock.

Today's compact lawn and garden tractors tug heavily loaded platforms for distance in open competition.

Unchanged in all these competitive events are the cheering onlookers.

A leader has two important characteristics: first, he is going somewhere; second, he is able to persuade other people to go with him.

What's New

FOLDING TOOL BAR

A new folding tool bar is being manufactured by the Agricultural Equipment Divisions of Allis-Chalmers Corp., for planter units, 90 series row crop cultivators and rotary cultivators. Hydraulic rams control the wing sections of the 5 x 7 in. tool bar. Center sections of 142 or 182 in. bases are available, and wing sections may be obtained in either 61 or 101 in. widths. This permits a choice of four sizes ranging from six to twelve row capacity for the cultivators, and up to eight 40 in. or twelve 30 in. rows with the planter. Adjustable gauge wheels are standard equipment and lift assist wheels may be obtained for large, complete units. Flexible hoses provide a dependable air supply for AIR CHAMP planter units. The tool bar will fit any standard Category III hitch.

Ag-safety Tip

It takes only a very small amount of electricity, which is used on every farm, to cause a fatal accident Actually, the amount of current needed by a small Christmas tree bulb is enough are tying up a good portion of the cars. If the traditional rush on fertilizer develops later this month and through April, deliveries may become bottlenecked because of the lack of transportation. But it won't be a matter of supplies not being available. They'll be in good supply, and prices are even 30 to 50 per cent lower than those of a year ago.

Fertilizer

Roup noted that 1974 fertilizer use was down for the first time since 1960. He believes that now, with lowered prices and increased supplies, "we have an economic incentive to run the industry on a business-like effort."

The seemingly good news does not have farmers leaping onto their trucks to pick up fertilizer, however. Apparently, for whatever reasons, many farmers are offering substantial resistance to ordering their fertilizer needs. Some are reportedly holding back because they feel the high prices and shortages of previous years were contrived.

Roup said fertilizer production plants are mushrooming all over the world. In nitrogen production, for example, the world presently has 98 firms which produce 65-million or more tons per year. Reports indicate that 120 more plants of this size are now on the drawing board — 18 of which are in Russia and 13 in Red China.

The growth of the fertilizer industry, and its pattern, is likely to change our "traditional" supply picture in years to come, Roup claimed. He described the phenomenal expansion of nitrogen-producing firms as "unrealistic," and possibly could lead to higher prices. He sees America as becoming less important in production and use of nitrogen while undeveloped nations, notably Russia and China, are recording great increases. A tight supply, "but no shortage," is seen by 1980-81 due to this increased use abroad.

"Phosphorus is very adequate," Roup continued. He sees a 30 per cent increase in demand by 1980.

The only cloudy situation as far as supplies are concerned involves potash and the Canadian government, which controls more than three-quarters of the potash used in the United States. Roup and representatives from other companies claim that supplies are adequate now, but this could change at any time if Canada wishes to cut its exports.

Max Maichele, Ortho agronomist, was the second speaker on the program which was held at the Meadow Hills Restaurant near New Danville. He gave several pointers which would be conducive to maximizing returns from fertilizer investments. They are:

Earlier planting dates and shallower planting depth. Besides lowering yields with late plantings, corn planted in June or late May is also much more susceptible to moisture stress. Maichele also recommends that farmers plant above intended populations to account for germination losses, and use a good starter fertilizer to speed growth. He cautions that fertilizers not be placed too close to the seed, lest they be damaged.

Leb. conserv. planned

George Wolff, chairman of the Lebanon County Conservation District, announces conservation planning meetings to be held March 9, 1976 at Cedar Crest High School, Vo-Ag Department and March 16, 1976 at Annville Cleona High School Vo-Ag Department. These meetings will show landowners what is involved in conservation planning.

Karl Hellerick, Soil Conservation Service and Clair Gerberich, Lebanon County Conservation District, will assist the landowners in planning their land.

Practices such as crop rotation, strip cropping, contour farming, crop residue management, or cover crops will be discussed there Other practices include diversions, sod waterways, drainage systems, or critical area stabilization. New cooperators and old cooperators are invited to the meetings. Each cooperator receives a copy of his soil survey and an aerial photo of his land.

the earlier state order.

By Wednesday hog cholera had also been confirmed in the two New England states with teams of USDA veterinarians racing to the scene.

As many of the hogs raised in New Jersey are shipped to packing plants in Philadelphia and eastern Pennsylvania, Dr. Everett E. Denlinger, director of the Bureau of Animal Industry in this state, imposed a statewide embargo on the movement and sale of all swine from New Jersey into Pa.

Although Denlinger could not be reached for comment this week, his associate Dr. Forney told the office that the embargo would stay in effect until the hog cholera situation was under control.

"At present we have had no reported cases," Forney noted on Thursday, "but we are still keeping our fingers crossed."

Forney explained that it was a little too early to tell if the virulent disease might have slipped across the border. "Several auctions in the state receive hogs from New Jersey," the official stated, "we're currently trying to trace hogs movements from the affected area."

Penn Packing located in Philadelphia receives the bulk of slaughter hogs from New Jersey, Forney explained, and the embargo will probably decrease the number of hogs running through that plant this week.

Other local auctions being watched include the facilities at Perkieomenville, Quakertown and in Leesport.

Under the federal quarantine slaughter animals could be shipped if they were deemed healthy but with the state embargo, no hogs will be accepted into the state from those infected areas until the disease is under control and erradicated.

Officials are not certain yet how the disease got started and where it might have come from but USDA and state agriculture teams have been working constantly since early this week trying to track down possible leads.

"We can't say yet just where the hog cholera came from," Werner Hietsch, a USDA official working in the New Jersey area stated on Thursday. "Teams have been working constantly since the first cases were confirmed but no substantial evidence has been found."

Maryland officials noted in a press release on Monday that health workers in that state had revealed that hogs from 11 herds had been recently shipped into the infected areas. Although there is no evidence to prove that the Maryland hogs may have seeded the cholera it is still being extensively checked.

Hog cholera cannot be contracted by humans but it is extremely contagious among swine and is usually fatal. The last outbreak of the disease in the United States occurred in Texas last July. The same area in New Jersey, now affected by the hog cholera, experienced the same disease in 1972. During that seige, the disease spread into several other New Jersey counties and into Pa. resulting in the destruction of 30,000 head of swine.

There is no effective way to control the disease and thus affected herds must be destroyed under the federal law. Indemnity can be paid for the swine but is 100 percent federal money. According to Werner Hietsch the indemnity is paid according to "fair market price and weight of the animals."

During a telephone interview on Thursday, Hietsch noted that although no purebred herds had even been affected, the increased value of the swine would be considered in indemnity payments if necessary.

In a release provided late last week, Denlinger, urged all swine producers in Pa. to keep accurate records on all hogs coming into their herds. "Sales and purchases should be recorded so that swine can be traced rapidly to the herd of their origin," he warned. The official also instructed all swine producers to report any sick animals to the Dept. of Agriculture or their veterinarian.

Signs of the disease include fever, loss of appetite, staggering gait and possible high death losses.

The USDA has set up a hotline for producers to use in reporting sick hogs. They should call 609-931-4566.

Let us never forget that the cultivation of the earth is the most important labor of man.

awards from Hoffman Seeds. Dale Hiestand, Bainbridge R1, was the first place winner in the shelled corn contest and received seed corn from the P L Rohrer Company

Keynote speaker for the evening was Donald Hershey, member of the Manheim Young Farmers. Hershey congratulated the young farmers for having gained membership increases during their first full year.

"It is good to see so many people involved in the young farmer program," Hershey noted. "I was in on the planning stages of the organization and it is quite an accomplishment for you to have come this far."

Hershey, an active member of the PFA and Manheim area farmer, spoke on the challenges that farmers will be facing in the future.

"Agriculture is America's greatest success story," Hershey stated, "but it didn't come without a lot of hard work and effort."

"It meant people sticking together and working for a common cause and we have to keep that spirit."

The Manheim farmer explained that technology had aided agriculture in this country and noted that today a farmer can feed 50 other people

"Many people don't understand that a farmer probably works about 100 hours a week and combined with ingenuity and effort has been able to produce great surpluses of food."

Hershey chided the urban consumers for arguing about food prices. "Food has gone up but when you compare its increase to everything else, it seems relatively small," he explained. "Food has increased five percent but look at other luxuries."

Commenting further on food prices, Hershey told the audience that compared to other countries, America had adequate food supplies with lower prices and produced easier. "In the United States a working person can earn enough money in 13 minutes to buy eggs but in Japan it takes one hour and 40 minutes for the same goods."

Hershey concluded his talk by reassuring the farmers that each individual has to have faith while also being a fatalist. "If they don't restrict our acreage they can't reduce our production," the farm leader noted. "We'll be faced with many challenges in the future but if we work together, farming can be a good way of life."

Fulton Grange meets

Fulton Grange 66 met in regular session on February 23 with Master Thomas Galbreath presiding The program was provided by Boy Scout Troop 130. Rev. Dale Miller, Scoutmaster, spoke on the purpose and activities of the troop and several of the boys reported on camps they had attended and activities they had participated in.

A donation was given to Meals on Wheels. Mrs. Dorothy Stauffer suggested the secretary write to Penn Dot and township supervisors concerning the intersection of Routes 272 and 372, asking that a study be made of the situation.

Cherry pie contest winners were named as follows for cherry crum pie: Mrs. Dorothy Stauffer, first; Mrs. Emma Rhoades, second; and Mrs. Joyce Holloway, third. Winners for her double crust cherry pie was Mrs. Sylvia May.

A date of April 3 was set for the annual turkey supper with tickets remaining at $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for children.

The next meeting, March 8, will feature a bicentennial program. Everyone is urged to bring old maps and atlases of the area. Mrs. Doris Brown will speak on trees in history.

standing milk, corn and silage producers. In the corn grain division, the results were as follows:

1. Andrew Stoltzfus, Morgantown R1, with a yield of 206.2 bushels per acre; 2. Eugene Eberly, New Holland R1, 194.4 bushels per acre; 3. Kenneth Hershey, Gordonville R1, 172.9 bushels per acre; 4. Clyde Martin, East Earl R1, 167.5 bushels per acre; 5. Ray Geissinger, New Holland R1, 164.4 bushels per acre.

In the corn silage contest, Bill Fisher took first place with a harvest of 14,950 pounds of TDN per acre. Second was Eugene Eberly, New Holland R1 with 14,206 pounds; and third Earl Weaver, New Holland R1 with 13,770 pounds.

The dairy achievement award was presented to Andrew Stoltzfus.

In the new varieties corn contest, Earl Weaver and Bill Fisher placed first and second, respectively. Weaver's yield of 157.8 bushels placed 5.1 bushels ahead of the second-place entry. It was noted that 23 different growers competed in the contest.

The past president's award was presented by current president Harold Wissler to Norman Hershey, 1974 president.

Last year's outstanding young farmer Nathan Stoltzfus who went on to win the Pennsylvania Young Farmer Region II title last year, was recognized again to receive a belated trophy and receive notice that his name will be engraved on the Carl M. Sauder Memorial Plaque which is permanently displayed in the Garden Spot High School ag classroom. Weaver's name will also be engraved on that plaque.

Certificates of appreciation were awarded to the following people:

Aaron Kurtz, president of the Eastern Lancaster County School Board; Ray Brechbill, feed programmer and salesman for Young's Inc., manufacturers of livestock supplements; John Yocum, director of Penn State's Southeast Field Research Laboratory at Landisville; and Lester Weaver, seed and fertilizer dealer from New Holland.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Steve Nolt who presented a three-screen slide program entitled "1800 seconds of America."

Weed control in corn... so good it's guaranteed!

You can rely on Sutan®+ herbicide and atrazine to do the job. Rain or shine, it works so well that Stauffer guarantees performance.

Just mix Sutan+ and atrazine in the soil as you work the ground for planting. Incorporation puts your herbicide right in the weed sprouting zone. This makes sure that you control weeds as fast as they sprout. You don't gamble on rain coming soon after corn planting to put your herbicide in the soil. That's the chance you take with surface-applied herbicides.

Most weed experts rate Sutan+ and atrazine tops for broad spectrum weed control in corn. This tank mix combination controls ever-present foxtails, crabgrass, barnyardgrass, pigweeds, lambsquarters and ragweed. And many others. Plus tough weeds like nutsedge, fall panicum and others.

The low rate of atrazine reduces chances of residue carryover. Sutan+ is biodegradable with no residue problems for rotation crops. Use Sutan+ and Bladex* for weed control with no carryover.

Performance of Sutan+ and atrazine, and of Sutan+ for grass weeds, is guaranteed in the continental United States when used as the label directs, or Stauffer will replace the Sutan+. Verify purchase, leave a check strip and notify Stauffer promptly.

Don't take a chance on losing control of weeds in your corn. Incorporate Sutan+ and atrazine in the soil before planting and you won't need to rush out with catch-up herbicides and cultivation. See your Stauffer supplier now. Always follow label directions carefully. Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, Connecticut 06880.

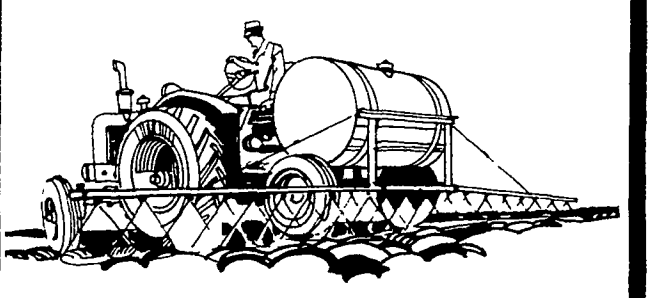
Set the stage with fertilizer now.



More yield, more money... when you apply pre-plant fertilizer. Fertilizing before you plant promotes healthy, hardy seedlings, and you avoid costly planting-time delays
Get the jump and get higher yield at harvest.
Stop in and see us soon, or phone right away We'll be glad to arrange a complete pre-plant "package"—including soil testing, fertilizer recommendations and custom application
We want to help.

GOOD NEWS despite BAD NEWS

The bad news is the prophecied famine, pestilences, and sorrow, serious drought in the west already. The good news is that the situation can be eased by live, spongy soil. Earthworms, bacteria, micro-organisms, trace minerals are very precious. Aiding nature, you get a lot of free help and plant food, spongy soil and subsoil that holds moisture, and long roots to go down and get it. Working against mature you need and pay for much fertilizer, plus insecticides, fungicides, and drugs for livestock.

Three products for sale to use with small amount of your fertilizer. $2 to $8 an acre will do much and save many other dollars. One promotes life, earthworms, bacteria, micro-organisms, good decay. One supplies the minerals and trace elements. One releases nutrients that are in the ground. It is also a wetting agent to mix in sprays, replacing half the chemical, is good for the soil instead of detrimental, and much cheaper than competitive products.

Write for free literature. Distributors wanted in other Counties. Eli L. Stoltzfus, 69 Strasburg Pike, Lancaster, Pa. 17602.

Agriculture Day

is something almost everyone in agricultural has been looking for," says NAMA Executive Director Ernest T. Marshall "NAMA helps provide materials to participate and encourages everyone to work together for the greatest impact on the same day March 22 - throughout the nation.

Last year, NAMA-prepared promotional materials, including 130,000 brochures, 8,500 school lesson plans and 60,000 coloring books, were distributed in 38 states. Features about Ag Day were carried by major newspapers, wire services, radio and television stations Thousands of school children, city residents and consumer groups visited farms or participated in special Ag Day programs.

Ag Day 1975, proved there's a tremendous interest in American agriculture, and an even greater eagerness on the part of ag interests to get the facts out - straight.

But lots of willing participants don't have the resources to generate communications materials and programs suitable for telling such a complex story effectively. (Which helps explain why NAMA received requests for Ag Day materials from 38 states last year.)

The need for continuing, clear-cut communications between urban and rural Americans won't diminish.

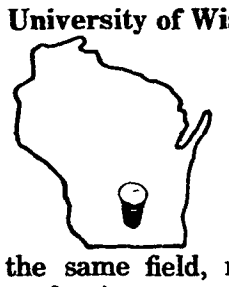
Harvestore processed haylage

Fact vs. Fiction

Alfalfa. The richest in protein of all forage crops. But when it's baled or stacked, a lot of those valuable nutrients are lost forever. Lost to shattering. To weather damage. To feed bunk waste. But with Harvestore processed alfalfa haylage, you're able to take full advantage of the protein-rich alfalfa plant. For profitable feeding facts, read these university research reports. For enjoyable fiction, visit your public library.

University of Wisconsin



"In a three year trial comparing roughage rations of hay and grass silage stored in a Harvestore with Harvestored processed haylage from the same field, results showed milk production averaged 45.6 lbs. of fat corrected milk daily on the haylage ration compared to 42.2 lbs. of fat corrected milk daily on the grass silage ration. This difference of 3.4 lbs. was highly significant." (D-86)

University of Illinois

"In two tests comparing dry hay and corn silage to Harvestore processed haylage, the results showed: "Steers fed haylage, high moisture corn and supplement gained 6.4% faster than steers receiving hay as their source of roughage. The haylage-fed cattle gained significantly faster than the silage-fed cattle. Haylage produced the cheaper gains." (B-37)

Ohio Agriculture Research & Development Center

"Under research conditions at the Ohio Experiment Station, tests show that one pound of alfalfa haylage replaced one pound of ground ear corn on a dry matter basis when fed between 50% and 60% of the total ration to dairy cattle. Cows preferred a high dry matter silage (haylage) over silage made by direct chopping. They ate more forage and responded with greater milk production." (D-19)

South Dakota State University

"Steers fed the forage with added water and stored in an airtight silo gained 7.1% faster than those fed chopped hay and 11.1% faster than those fed baled hay. The improvement in feed efficiency over baled and chopped hay amounted to 13.5 and 11.5%." (B-89)

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Shertzer remodeled their older farm house from the basement to the kitchen.

Homestead Notes

Farm family renovates century old house

By SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Feature Writer

If you have considered restoring your old stone farmhouse to its original condition, then you should visit Melvin L. and Kathryn M. Shertzer, Millersville, R1. During the past four years they have removed plaster to uncover stone walls, opened ceilings to reveal the original beams, refinished oak and pine floors and scrapped layers of paint from cabinets, woodwork and stairs to bring out the natural beauty in a house nearly 200 years old.

The Shertzers live on a 100-acre dairy farm purchased 18 years ago. The history of the beautiful pointed stone house reaches back to 1760, according to courthouse records and the ages of neighboring homes. For 14 years the Shertzers left the interior of the house as it was when they took possession. However, in 1973 they started intensive and time-consuming restoration, beginning with the basement. The next year the children's bedrooms and the kitchen were restored and remodelled. In 1975 the dining room and living room were refinished and the master bedroom was finished early this year.

Mrs. Shertzer explained many people comment about their starting in the basement. The basic reason for selecting the basement as a starting point was the fuel shortage. The old double basement had a daylight side which had a huge walk-in fireplace and the family wished to utilize it for heat in the new family room to be made there. To transform the old basement into an attractive and enjoyable room the Shertzers spent long hours chiseling off the old plaster on the walls, fireplace and ceiling so that the original stone walls and hand cut beams and girders could be exposed. Once the plaster was removed the stones were sand blasted and new mortar was added. The beams, along with all the floors, stairs, cabinets and woodwork were finished with a clear polyurethane varnish to retain the natural color of the wood. The huge fireplace still has the original log across its top.

Williamsburg colors were used throughout the house as Mrs. Shertzer moved from one room to another patching and painting. Mr. Shertzer had the tedious task of scrapping old paint from the woodwork and cabinets. The bedrooms were done in antique white walls, Williamsburg green or red trim on the chair rails, windows, clothes pegs and base boards. The ceilings were painted with Williamsburg white-wash — a very white, textured paint applied with a white-wash brush. The pine floors were sanded and finished with a clear varnish.

The spacious, warm kitchen with its dark cabinets, harvest table, brick fireplace and large tilt-top bench is inviting to the eye and very convenient with its Corning cooktop stove and modern dishwasher. The cabinets above the counter were stripped and refinished and the lower cabinets were made to match the upper ones. The fireplace was opened and faced with brick. The walls are antique white, accented with gold trim. The dining room is antique white with blue woodwork and the living room is white, accented with green. Both rooms have the white-washed ceilings.

The deep windows have most of the old glass panes in them and when a pane does need to be replaced, Mr. Shertzer uses an old pane he has found at auctions. The family vacations in the mountains of Sullivan County and enjoy looking for bargains in antiques at public auctions while they are there. One novel idea the Shertzers have used is to transform the large pulley wheels once used to hold threshing belts into small tables with marble tops.

The Shertzers have several family antiques such as a desk made around 1850 by Abe Herr of Lampeter, a marble-topped table, and a washbowl set, to name a few. Raymond Rohrer, Manheim, R3, Mrs. Shertzer's brother, refinished many items for them and made the harvest table, benches and tilt-top bench now in the kitchen.

When asked what the most difficult part of the whole restoration was, Mrs. Shertzer answered the chiseling off the plaster from the stone walls in the basement. Mr. Shertzer said taking the varnish off the steps! They warn anyone starting such a task as theirs to allow plenty of time for the work to progress and to expect the unexpected delays and problems to come. Their greatest sense of reward came from turning the basement, "a hopeless sight into something warm, enjoyable and inviting," remarked Mr. Shertzer.

One unusual item in the house not touched in the restoring process is a smokehouse room in the attic. It is a metal-lined room approximately 8 feet by 8 feet. Slits in the chimney were opened in the past to allow the smoke to enter the room at the floor level then return to the chimney through slits at the top.

During these four years of scrapping, painting, planning, the Shertzers have been operating 250 acres and milking 70 cows with the help of their children: Jay - 17, Stephen - 16, Kay - 13 and Scott - 11. Jay and Stephen are

Gardeners may have 'uncanny' future

By MELISSA PIPER

For the past two years sharp increases have been noted in the amount of home gardens maintained by the American public. Much of the increase can be attributed to the increased food prices and a general feeling that eating natural foods is better for your health.

A recent report stated that during the bicentennial year, the amount of American homes having gardens would increase by 3½ million putting the final tally at 35 million. And while that indicates a whole lot of lettuce, radishes and cantaloupes, it also means that about four percent more families will also use canning as a food preservation method this year.

Those figures bring back memories of last summer when our telephone here rang constantly for days because of shortages of canning lids. It also conjures up the stories of "black-market" selling and an overbuying panic which swept the country as home canners struggled to preserve their produce.

The main concern still spawning is just what supplies of canning equipment will be available when the summer goods come to a ripening peak. Will there be another year of panic, hasseled shoppers and senate hearings? At least in my mind the answer is still to be determined.

A release from one of the major home canning manufacturers which reached our office this week, claimed that they would be producing at least 65 percent more replacement caps and lids for this year's canning season.

While this estimate seems temporarily reassuring it should also be noted that the same amounts of canning accessories will be distributed to the areas as last year. The manufacturer will be taking the average amount of supplies sent to an area during 1974 and '75 and this is what the distributors will have to offer. If a substancial amount of new gardeners begin their harvest in an area then the supplies may not be enough for everyone concerned. This is one aspect of the situation which may need correcting.

The leading company also stated that if supplies are needed in one area of the country then "with the cooperation of the distributors amounts can be diverted promptly to other areas." We hope this is true but again last year the promptness was not always carried out.

All the statistics and estimates are purely conjecture at this point however, many factors will really determine if enough home canning supplies will be required. Drought, floods, frosts and insects along with a host of other possibilities will no doubt have an effect on the need and it will take months before a conclusion can be drawn.

If the manufacturers are giving the consumers correct estimates then perhaps no panic will avail this summer but if information seems difficult to access again this year, with the home canner coming up short, then another season will be spent in concern.

Consumers as well as the manufacturers will have to work together if this summer is to be more pleasant. Panic buying of canning supplies is certainly no answer to the problem and often leads to decreased supplies. Thus pay a little more attention to your neighbor's needs. Also, I hope the manufacturers will turn their attention to the needs of each area with well founded judgements. If this cooperation exists then perhaps home gardening will be enjoyable and helpful as it was intended to be.

Kathryn Shertzer finds time and the desire "to try almost anything new in the homemaking and crafts area," she explained Among her interests are bargello, decoupage, ceramics, crocheting, baking — especially yeast breads — gourmet cooking and quilt making. She says she gives away her handiwork as gifts, but several projects in progress are evident throughout the home. She shares several of her family's favorite recipes here·

6 LAYER DISH

Place in layers as follows:
Thick layer of raw potatoes
½ cup rice over potatoes
Cover rice with 1 pound Hamburger
Thick layer sliced onions
layer of carrots
1 quart canned tomatoes or less
1 tablespoon salt and 1 tablespoon brown sugar
Sprinkle with pepper
Bake in 350-degree oven 2½ hours.

PORK CHOP SUPREME

2 green peppers
6 pork chops
6 slices Bermuda onion
6 Tablespoons rice
1 No. 2 can tomatoes

Slice onion and make 6 pepper rings. Brown chops. (Use large skillet with cover.) Place onion ring on each chop, then pepper ring on each and 1 T. rice in each. Add 1 can tomatoes. Spoon some juice from tomatoes into each rice cup. Cover and simmer 45 minutes to 1 hour until pork is thoroughly cooked.

CHICKEN KIEV

6 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned and pounded flat
¼ pound butter, cut in strips
6 green onions, chopped fine
2 T. parsley flakes or 6 T. fresh parsley, chopped
2 whole eggs, beaten until frothy
2 Cups Corn Flake crumbs
Flour
Note: Pound breasts skin side down

Salt breasts on inside; Combine parsley flakes or parsley, and onion. In center of each breast, place a strip of very cold butter and one-twelfth of parsley-onion mixture. Fold short sides of breast toward center, long ends over, envelope style, to make a tight package. Dip in flour. Breasts may be frozen at this point, if you wish to use at a later time. Dip breasts in beaten egg, then in corn flake crumbs. Roast, uncovered in 325-degree oven for 40-45 minutes. May be basted with melted butter. Yield: 12 half breasts.

Food marketing alert

As of mid-February, the supply situation in March is expected to look like this . . .

RED MEATS—

Beef . . . plentiful. Production 8-10 percent above a year earlier and 15 percent more than the 1973-75 Mar. average. Sharply increased fed beef output accounts for most of larger supplies.

Pork . . . adequate, due to seasonal increases above Feb. levels — but still 5 percent below year earlier level and 12 percent under the Mar. 1973-75 average.

POULTRY & EGGS—

Broiler-fryers . . . adequate. Production expected to be record, about 10 percent above both year earlier and 1973-75 averages.

Turkey . . . adequate. Expected record high off-season marketings will be more than offset by 25 to 30 percent lower cold storage holdings; supplies will be about 25 percent less than last year.

Eggs . . . adequate. Production about the same as a year ago, but under the most recent 3-year average.

MILK & DAIRY PRODUCTS—

Milk and dairy products . . . adequate. Output above both year earlier and the latest 3-year average. Butter production in Dec. was 7.3 percent below year earlier levels, but above the 1972-74 monthly average for the first time since April 1975. American cheese output up 8.5 percent from a year earlier and 5.5 percent larger than the most recent 3-year average. Nonfat dry milk production continues below previous levels, Dec. '75 being 19.5 percent less than a year earlier and 5.7 percent below the 1972-74 monthly average. Early Jan. commercial stocks remained below both a year earlier and latest 3-year monthly average: butter, 84 percent under a year earlier and 76 percent less than 1973-75 average; American cheese down 27 percent and 6 percent; nonfat dry milk, 66 and 44 percent.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES, NUTS

Fresh apples . . . plentiful. Dec. 31 cold storage stocks 16 percent greater than a year earlier and 28 percent larger than 3-year average.

Fresh pears . . . plentiful. Dec. 31 cold storage holdings (mainly D'Anjous) 5 percent less than a year earlier, but 24 percent greater than 1972-74 average.

Frozen red tart cherries . . . plentiful. Dec. 31 supplies about one-fourth larger than both a year ago and average.

Fresh citrus fruits and juices . . . plentiful. Early, mid-season, and Navel orange production about same as last season and 7 percent ahead of average. Grapefruit crop record large, up 14 percent from last season and 9 percent larger than average. Florida frozen concentrated orange juice stocks Jan. 31 were 21 percent above a year earlier and 39 percent more than average.

Canned non-citrus fruits . . . plentiful. Jan. 1 inventories of most canned fruits were considerably heavier than a year earlier.

Raisins . . . plentiful. 1975 production 18 percent greater than the heavy 1974 output. Dried prunes . . . plentiful. Production in 1975 about 6 percent larger than in 1974.

Processed vegetables . . . plentiful. The Jan. 1 canners' stocks of 12 principal canned vegetables were 27 percent larger than a year earlier and 29 percent more than 1973-75 average.

Fresh potatoes . . . adequate. Feb. 1 stocks 6 percent below last year's record level.

Dry onions . . . light, until late Mar., when new crop marketings from Texas will augment shipments from storage.

Peanuts . . . plentiful, with Dec. 31 stocks slightly higher than 1974. The 1975 crop was record high by 5 percent. Almonds . . . plentiful, because of large carryover from record '74 crop. Walnuts . . . plentiful, as record 1975 crop exceeds '74 by about 25 percent. Pecans . . . plentiful, with 1975 output about 68 percent greater than the small harvest of 1974.

GRAINS & LEGUMES—

Rice . . . plentiful. Record high forecast for 1975 crop — 14 percent above the 1974 output and 32 percent more than average. Dry beans . . . plentiful, substantially heavier output of certain varieties despite overall crop 15 percent below 1974's. Dry peas, plentiful due to large carryover from 1974 crop.

Wheat . . . plentiful. Unchanged for past 2 months, forecast is for a record crop 19 percent greater than previous high in 1974 and 27 percent above the 1972-74 average.

Corn . . . plentiful for food use. Record 1975 production 25 percent more than a year earlier and 10 percent ahead of 3-year average.

Terminology used: PLENTIFUL — More than enough for requirements. ADEQUATE — Enough to meet needs. LIGHT — Less than adequate; not enough for normal needs.

Students make 'dough' in school

By MELISSA PIPER

YORK — For a number of students at the vocational-technical school here, making "dough" has become an important business No, they haven't begun a counterfeit money operation but are becoming quite precise in making delicious doughnuts, layer cakes, pies, cookies and breads! The students are enrolled in the food trades department and are learning the business of baking and cooking from Mrs Lynn Schaeffer, Mrs Sheila Jones and Mrs Donna Cherry

The students' accomplishments in baking first came to our attention during Farm Show Week when the group captured a number of awards for their brightly decorated entries In fact, the students won 33 awards out of 45 entries in the foods division Having completely dominated the contest we decided to visit the actual kitchen and find out just what was "cookin".

Although baked goods was the dominate item in competition, the students must learn all phases of the foods industry, as we soon learned while visiting the school early this week

Lunchtime at the York County AVTS school is one of the busiest times of the day for the food trade students Between 11:30 a m. and 1:00 p.m., the students can be seen scurrying around the kitchen area preparing lunches, decorating cakes, frosting doughnuts and working in the cafeteria area itself.

Donning netted caps and either uniforms or waitressing outfits, both young ladies and men attend to their specific jobs. The first year students, usually sophomores, have cafeteria duties that range from serving casseroles to scrubbing pots. The older students take turns serving hot foods for the faculty dining area "Spart-Inn" or waiting on the teachers to practice dining room skills.

Waiters and waitresses for the "Spart-Inn" wear bright green skirts or slacks with matching vests A straw hat, trimmed with green ribbons and a neat bow tie complement the scene and incidentally were made by the home design department in the school.

Although students were continually seeking advice from their able instructors, Mrs Lynn Schaeffer, teacher of the older students, explained the experience by being involved in all phases of the foods industry the students are able to develop skills and know just what is expected of everyone "

Mrs Sheila Jones, who teaches baking, echoed the thoughts. "So many times, young people who just get a job in a restaurant learn one aspect of the business and often do not know what other workers do."

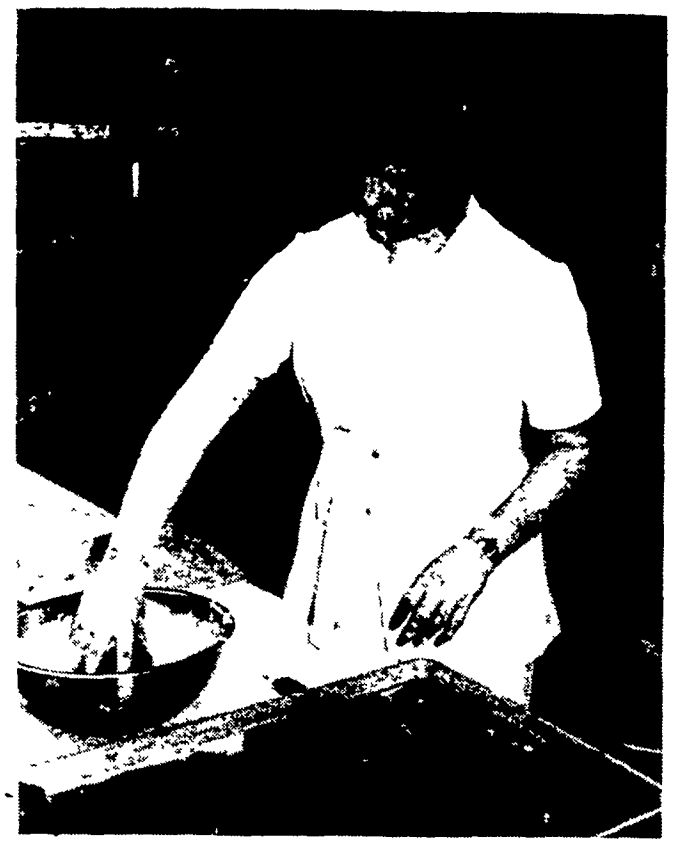
"In this manner of practical experience, the students can learn most of the work from cafeteria serving to cooking and appreciate all phases."

During the remainder of the day, the students learn theory or work on outside orders. Many people from the community and schools order baked goods each day and the students lend their skills in completing the items.

During our visit, two students were decorating a large sheet cake which turned out to be a bicentennial flag - complete with stars and stripes. Cinnamon rolls, glazed doughnuts and a birthday cake were also being prepared for sale.

"The students are allowed to select the items they wish to make," Mrs. Jones explained. "They are responsible for getting them done on time and for having a good product."

The success of the York AVTS food trade department has been aided by three knowledgeable ladies. Mrs. Donna Cherry (left) works as a teacher's aid while Mrs. Lynn Schaeffer (center) and Mrs. Sheila Jones teach theory and practical skills.



Glazing doughnuts are just one part of completing an order. Deb Adams, York, works busily at the task during a shop period.

One of the largest orders this week was for the famous "fasnachts" and three students spent most of the morning dipping the doughnuts into the hot spattering grease.

Meanwhile, the older students prepared a variety of dishes for the faculty dining room and making sure all duties were attended to. From shrimp creole and hot rice to chef salads the students worked busily to make the dining room a success.

Many of the third year students work outside the school. About 70 percent of this year's class are working in jobs in the York area. Several students work in restaurants while some are located in bake shops and for the first time some students have begun work in the fast food stores which dot the county.

"Not all students are allowed to go out on work experience," Mrs. Schaeffer explained. "They must have

It's an Ag-fact

It's an ag-fact. For every dollar received from the export of farm products, another 75 cents is generated throughout non-farm areas of the economy. In a year's time, this added economic effect of farm exports now amounts to an extra $15 billion or more injected into the economy.

good academic standing, good attendance records and have recommendations."

Being a student in the food trades is not merely a "piece of cake" for the practical work must be mastered while still being involved in academic studies. For two weeks the students work full time in the "shop" learning their trade then spend two weeks in the total academic environment.

Most of the young people however, enjoy their experience in learning the food trade and either take positions in the field following graduation or use the techniques on a personal basis.

The success of the program was aided by the instructors who give a large portion of their time helping the students learn the trade. Mrs. Lynn Schaeffer instructs the older students and has had eight years of experience in teaching home economics and the foods trade. She has been pleased with the program at the York AVTS and finds it interesting that students from all over the county travel to the school. "We have students from all over York County and some come quite a distance, I feel this indicates their interest in the program and what we can offer them." Mrs. Schaeffer is a graduate of Colorado State University and taught junior high school before coming to York AVTS five years ago.

The baking instructor, Mrs. Sheila Jones, graduated from Messiah College and teaches the basic theory to the first year students. Mrs. Donna Cherry serves as a teacher's aide and works with students on an individual basis as well as lending a hand where ever needed.

Students who might have had to obtain jobs on their own after regular public school years ago, are now being trained in special fields at vocational technical schools all over the state. The interest and enthusiasm which adds zest to the foods kitchen at the York AVTS, is hopefully a harbinger of better educational methods to come. And while the students must work on academic studies as well - their "dough making" business will hopefully be a profit in the future.

Guidelines For Buying Incandescent Lights

The concept of the light bulb has changed little since Edison's first "electric lamp." But the variety of bulbs now available can be confusing. I would like to offer some background to find the right bulb type to fit your needs.

An inside frosted bulb, often called the "standard bulb," is etched on the inside surface to soften its light. This type is the least expensive.

For a softer, diffused light which offers less glare, choose a soft white bulb. It has a silica coating, rather than etching on the inside, and gives off slightly less light than a standard bulb.

Soft-white-plus bulbs contain a special filament which stays relatively cool when a bulb is lit. They last 50 to 100 percent longer than standard bulbs, but cost more. Use these for soft diffused light or in a hard-to-get-at fixture. You won't have to change them as often as some other bulbs.

A special filament gives long-life bulbs their lasting power — about three times as long as standard bulbs. But the extended service comes at the cost of the light output. Choose one if your main concern is lasting power. Its filament burns with a slightly yellow light.

Some light manufacturers use krypton, an inert gas, to improve the efficiency and increase the life of the bulbs. Krypton-filled bulbs are more expensive, often double the cost of standard bulbs. But they're worth the expense if you want a high-efficiency bulb.

FHA Loans Available For Rural Homeowners

Many rural homes are in need of repair or improvement. If yours is one of these you may be eligible for a loan from the Farmers Home Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture.

There are home improvement and repair loans to bring houses up to minimum property standards or to remove health or safety hazards. The type of loan depends on income. If income is so low only health and safety hazards can be removed you may be eligible for a repair loan.

If your income is somewhat higher, you may get a home improvement loan to bring your home up to the Farmers Home Administrations' minimum property standards.

Generally, you can use repair loans to remove health hazards by repairing roofs, providing a sanitary water and waste disposal system that meets local health department requirements, installing screens, windows or insulation or taking other steps to make your home safe.

Home improvement loans may include similar purposes, but in addition, you may make changes such as adding rooms, remodeling the kitchen, or otherwise modernizing the house.

For information on types of loans, terms, income, security and other information, contact the Farmers Home Administration's office. They will help you determine which loan best fits your needs.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As Spring approaches, I hope to gain a lot more from my walks to the mailbox than I have the last few weeks. Maybe walking for the mail doesn't sound like much to you but for me it is a three-fourth mile hike.

As I walk past the woodland, I hear the hen pheasants (long before I see them) scurrying through the dry brown leaves to disappear beyond the rise. The grey squirrels scamper from the cornfield, cross the lane in front of me, and seek the safety of a large tree.

During my strolls, I've picked peach twigs, pussy willow branches and forsythia to force indoors. They now grace the dining room table and add a touch of Spring. I anticipate finding more flowers as warm weather arrives.

We were quite disappointed last month to get a letter cancelling the Business - Farm Day Exchange Tour sponsored by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce. Even though 400 invitations were mailed to farm families only 40 postage-paid postcards were returned saying that they wanted to participate in the program.

We feel that farmers missed a great opportunity not only to see how business operates but also to improve relations with consumers of farm products.

In previous years, we have toured large manufacturing concerns and also banking institutions. Always, we've been treated like royalty and enjoyed a real learning experience. Surely, the few hours away from the farm would have been mutually beneficial. You'd be surprised at how farmers are misunderstood and with this poor response we don't give them a chance to learn.

Against the Law

In Houston, the law says you can't buy rye bread, goose liver or limburger cheese on Sunday If you do, it is forbidden to take it out of the store! In Massachusetts, it's against the law to eat peanuts in church In Evansville, Indiana it's against the law to sell hamburgers on Sunday, while in Iowa it's illegal to serve food in pool rooms or barber shops

OVEREATING AND YOUR LIFE-SPAN

Overeating early in life certainly can lead to obesity that may be irreversible And some evidence has suggested that overeating early in life may predispose a person to cancer

But now two researchers—M H Ross and G Bras of Philadelphia and Utrecht Netherlands—have reported that overeating also shortens life-span

ACCORDING to their report in the eminent journal, Science, Ross explained "Obviously there are all sorts of ways to shorten life-span But diet is apparently the only way we know of to date that will increase the length of life of a warm-blooded animal I think that what we have done here is confirm the fact that under natural conditions there is a relationship between dietary habits and life-span, whereas in previous work the study was always on animals under some kind of stress"

Ross and Bras allowed 121 rats to select their own diets after the first 21 days of life and to follow these diets until they died The rats, in the manner of people, chose widely varying amounts and kinds of foods

There was a dramatic correlation between how much the rats ate and how long they lived The average life of a rat is 630 days The rats in the Ross-Bras study lived anywhere from 317 days to 1 026 days

"IT'S WHAT you eat during the early phase of life that counts" Ross says "An ample diet and a nonexcessive rate of increased body weight is apparently conducive to a long life"

Researchers Ross and Bras have not extrapolated their data beyond that but it is expected that their research will continue to give us more information

Since they submitted the Science paper for publication, they have found that they can predict, on the basis of what rats eat and how fast they grow, how long they will live "We are now trying to see whether imposing a change on such animals truly increases their life-span" Ross says

MY RECOMMENDATION to readers of this column, as always, is that one should eat a well-balanced diet, chosen from a wide variety of foods from the four food groups (the milk and meat groups, vegetables and fruit, breads and cereals)—but never more food than you need to maintain ideal weight

The February 28th meeting of Society of Farm Women 4 was held at the home of Mrs. Daniel Forry, Columbia R2, with Mrs. Cyrus Gamble, Jr. as co-hostess.

Mrs. Henry Reist, president, conducted the meeting. Devotions "The 100th Psalms" was said by the members.

Twenty-seven members answered roll call by naming a penny for each door (walk-in-doors) in your home. The highest number was reported by Alice Minnie Ninsley, a total of fifty, and Mary Snyder, the least, with six.

Mrs. Elmer B. Schroll introduced the speaker, Mrs. Wilbur Kauffman, who spoke on "What's on a Dollar Bill?"

She displayed two Armetele Plates showing the enlarged emblems as on each side on back of the bill and explained in detail each item.

Three members responded for the heart risk factor day. They were Mrs. Henry Reist, Mrs. Charles Newcomer, and Mrs. Richard Kling. The following were given donations: Good Will, Inc., St. Joseph Hospital Cardiac Unit, Welsh Mountain Clinic for the County Project.

The May meeting will be held one week earlier on May 15th at the Landisville Church of God.

Mrs. Paul A. Kauffman, 740 Prospect Rd., Columbia, Pa. will send for tickets for Spring Rally, May 12, 1976.

Mrs. Edwin H. Yeaglin and Mrs. Richard King were presented certificates of appreciation for participating in state project Sew a Colonial Dress.

Major canning equipment manufacturer reports increased production

MUNCIE, In. — Ball Corporation, Muncie, Indiana, a major producer of home canning supplies, said today that during the 1976 home canning season it plans to produce and place in distribution channels at least 65 percent more replacement caps and lids for home canning jars than were shipped during the 1975 season.

"This is a realistic but cautious projection," William C. Hannah, Group Vice President, Glass Containers, said, "and does not include zinc caps and rubber rings." "Two new production lines, each capable of producing an excess of 1,200 lids a minute, are in the start-up phase," he said. "Should these new lines reach maximum production levels earlier than anticipated, we will be able to significantly better our present cautious estimate," he said. "The Ball cap and lid plants in Muncie, Indiana, and El Monte, California," Mr. Hannah added, "will continue to operate three shifts a day, seven days a week, as they have almost continuously since January 2, 1975."

"Even now, in the middle of February," W. Stanley Stuart, Jr., Vice President, Consumer Products said, "Ball is receiving many requests for information about the availability of replacement caps and lids as well as a substantial number of letters from home canners, complaining that they are unable to purchase lids now even though the home canning season is months away." "Many of these letters," Stuart said, "are coming from canners in the northern tier of states." "It is impossible," he said, "to satisfy even a small portion of the total home canning season demand this early in the year."

"Ball," Mr. Stuart said, "will allocate its home canning products in an equitable manner to its customers based on shipments to those customers in 1974 and 1975. An average of shipments, by item, in those years will be used in determining the percent of the total available 1976 production each customer will receive. The allocations have been developed on a quarterly basis and will reflect historic shipment patterns which are related to the growing harvest season."

"Many of the inquiries Ball received," Mr. Stuart said, "are from canners who want to buy directly from the Company. Our products are distributed through wholesalers or chain purchasing organizations that, in turn, ship to retail stores," he said. "This method of distribution is the best manner by which we can serve all geographic areas of the country and is the least expensive method for the consumer. If we had to set up a mail order department, with hundreds of people to pack jars, caps and lids for mailing, and pay the postage for getting the products to the consumer, the home canner's cost for these supplies would increase intolerably," he said.

"Ball will continue," Mr. Stuart said, "to provide complete units — jars with caps — to those canners who need and want them. However, during the 1976 season, Ball expects to produce and ship to its customers seven times as many replacement caps and lids as complete jar-cap units."

According to Jack K. Carmichael, Governmental Affairs Manager, many requests are being received from governors, members of Congress, state legislators and other governmental officials asking for information concerning the number of caps and lids and-or jars which have been or will be shipped to the retailers in their respective states or districts. "There isn't any way in which we can accurately provide such information," Mr. Carmichael said, "because our sales territories reflect marketing considerations rather than geographic or political boundaries. Supplies reaching the retailers in any one state, congressional or state legislative district frequently come from distributors outside that political entity as well as from distributors domiciled in that state or district. Also, supplies shipped to a distributor in a particular political entity may well reach retailers outside that state or district." "Any information on shipments in response to such requests," Carmichael said, "could very well be misleading."

"There is no accurate way this early in the year to determine the overall demand for home canning supplies," Mr. Stuart said. "We do estimate that there will be about 35 million home vegetable gardens in 1976, up from 32½ million last year. A recent survey suggests that 41 percent of American households plan to do some home canning in 1976, up from 37 percent a year ago.

However, previous surveys have shown that not all households planning to can actually fulfill their intentions." "Demand for home canning supplies is affected by several factors," Stuart explained. Floods, frost or drought damaging crops reduces canning activity in one area while favorable growing conditions increase the amount of home canning activity in another. "These factors are watched very closely," he said, "and with the cooperation of our distributors any home canning supplies not needed in one area of the country can be diverted promptly to other areas."

Fowl sold at auctions must be pulloram free

HARRISBURG - Enforcement of recent regulations slated to go into effect May 15 will require proof that fowl sold at auctions originate from pullorum-free flocks, it was announced today by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Currently, the department's Bureau of Animal Industry monitors the movements of commercial flocks to protect against outbreaks of pullorum, a fatal, bacterially caused disease of poultry.

According to Dr. Edward T. Mallinson, chief of the bureau's Poultry Health Division, recent regulations concerning inter and intrastate movement of poultry including shipments to auctions are aimed at preventing and detecting pullorum both in commercial and backyard poultry flocks. "Outbreaks of this disease among backyard flocks can be very costly to the owner and poses a hazard to commercial hatcheries," said Mallinson. "These are the reasons for broadened enforcement and drafts of regulations affecting poultry auctions."

As of May 15, poultry sold at auctions for raising or breeding will have to originate from flocks tested for pullorum disease. Poultry sold for slaughter within two weeks of purchase can pass through without restrictions.

The regulations will affect chickens, turkeys and barnyard types of waterfowl and game fowl such as pheasants, quail and guinea fowl.

Mallinson explained that anyone buying poultry at an auction for purposes other than slaughter should request proof that they are from a tested flock.

Mallinson added that people interested in good sources of breeds should check the list of fowl exhibitors. This list is available at the department's Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, Poultry and Egg Division.

Mallinson stressed that the new regulations place the responsibility on the seller for insuring that birds are free of pullorum disease. He said that information on where to get birds bled for tests can be obtained from the department's Bureau of Animal Industry. "We have a list of veterinarians and lay technicians who can do the testing job," Mallinson said.

Poultry may also be sold at auctions if accompanied by National Poultry Improvement Plan (NPIP) certificates which assure that the birds originate from healthy flocks.

Of the 51 auctions in the commonwealth, only a few deal with poultry returning to farms, according to Mallinson. This makes the job of maintaining an effective surveillance relatively easy.

Mallinson cautioned that some birds arrive in the commonwealth by air parcel post. "Buyers of hatching eggs or poultry shipped by air should be careful that the originating flocks have been rated 'U.S. Pullorum Clean,'" said Mallinson.

Pullorum test requirements will not apply to pet birds such as parrots, parrakeets, pigeons, canaries and certain types of rare, exotic water or game fowl.

Milk orders altered

After approval by dairy farmers through their cooperative associations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has amended and merged the Boston Regional and Connecticut federal milk marketing orders and combined the marketing areas they now cover. The changes will become effective April 1.

The new single order will be known as the New England federal milk marketing order.

H. L. Forest, dairy official in USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), said the required two-thirds majority approval of the merger by producers was determined by polling cooperatives representing a large majority of dairy farmers serving the market.

Terms of the merged order are the same as those of the final decision of Jan. 26, which was submitted for the dairy farmer approval.

Minor changes have also been made in the New York - New Jersey federal milk order. This was done, Forest said, to accommodate the discontinuance of the "Connecticut order price differential," which has been used to price some milk moving between the Connecticut and New York - New Jersey markets.

What's New . . .

WAYNE BROOD 'N IRON BREAKS NATURE'S BARRIERS

Iron deficiency probably plagues no other specie to the degree it does swine. This is partly due to the large litters the modern, genetically-improved sow produces in confinement.

With 10, 11 or 12 pigs per litter, each pig only gets a fraction of the total iron available to the entire litter. These fractional amounts of iron are not sufficient to meet the needs of the nursing pig, according to Dr. A. J. ("Al") Svajgr, Wayne Feeds Manager of Swine Research.

"Until now, the customary way to get supplemental iron into the baby pig was with an iron injection. However, these shots take time, cause stress, open the door for infectious agents and are sometimes neglected altogether."

"The sow can now supply the baby pig with enough iron to prevent anemia in the pig . . . if the sow's fed Wayne Brood 'N Iron," Svajgr explained. "It was previously thought impossible to accomplish this seemingly obvious solution to anemia. Nature has developed several highly sophisticated barriers which prevent higher quantities of iron from getting through to the sow's milk supply.

"The most important natural barrier of all is the sow's gut wall. It allows only about 10 percent of ordinary ingested iron to pass into her bloodstream. In order for iron to cross through the wall of the small intestine, it must first be combined into a biological complex of amino acids and proteins, a process called 'chelation.' Only a limited amount of this complex is formed naturally."

The Wayne researcher said that merely feeding more of an ordinary iron supplement to the sow isn't the answer, since little of it would be absorbed. "Furthermore, if fed in excessive amounts, this ordinary, non-chelated iron would probably cause irritation in the sow's stomach and intestine.

"Wayne Brood 'N Iron is man's first successful conquest of these barriers in the sow. The iron in this new product is chemically bound to predigested protein containing amino acids, polypeptides and peptides." As a matter of fact, said the swine researcher, it's much like the form of iron that occurs in natural tissues.

"At the present time, several major benefits are available from Wayne Brood 'N Iron," Svajgr said. They are:

- Consistently high hemoglobin levels in baby pigs, even without iron injections.
- Two-tenths of a pound heavier birth weights.
- An increase in the liver storage of iron in pigs at birth.
- Increased iron levels in the blood plasma of both sows and pigs.
- And, it performs a breakthrough by raising the iron content of the sow's milk.

"Baby pigs need the extra iron they get from Brood 'N Iron," said Svajgr. "If they don't get it, the pigs will have depressed iron levels by the end of their first week of life.

This new product has a beneficial effect on pig performance, too. "A summary of research experiments showed that Brood 'N Iron pigs weighed two-tenths of a pound more at birth than those that were injected with iron and whose mothers received ordinary iron," Svajgr explained. "By three weeks they were over six-tenths of a pound heavier than their iron-injected counterparts. This extra weight and vigor means more live pigs at weaning. Brood 'N Iron pigs are better able to withstand the stresses of commercial hog production and do it in less time and with less feed without the stress and bother of having to use an iron syringe," the Wayne researcher concluded.

LIFE on the farm

By

Dieter Krieg, Editor

© Dieter Krieg 1976

Winter was beginning to retreat and it was time to think about upcoming field work. Warm air was already occasionally brushing across our farm; thawed fields released a fresh, earthy scent; and the first ripples of "farming fever" were surging through my heart and mind.

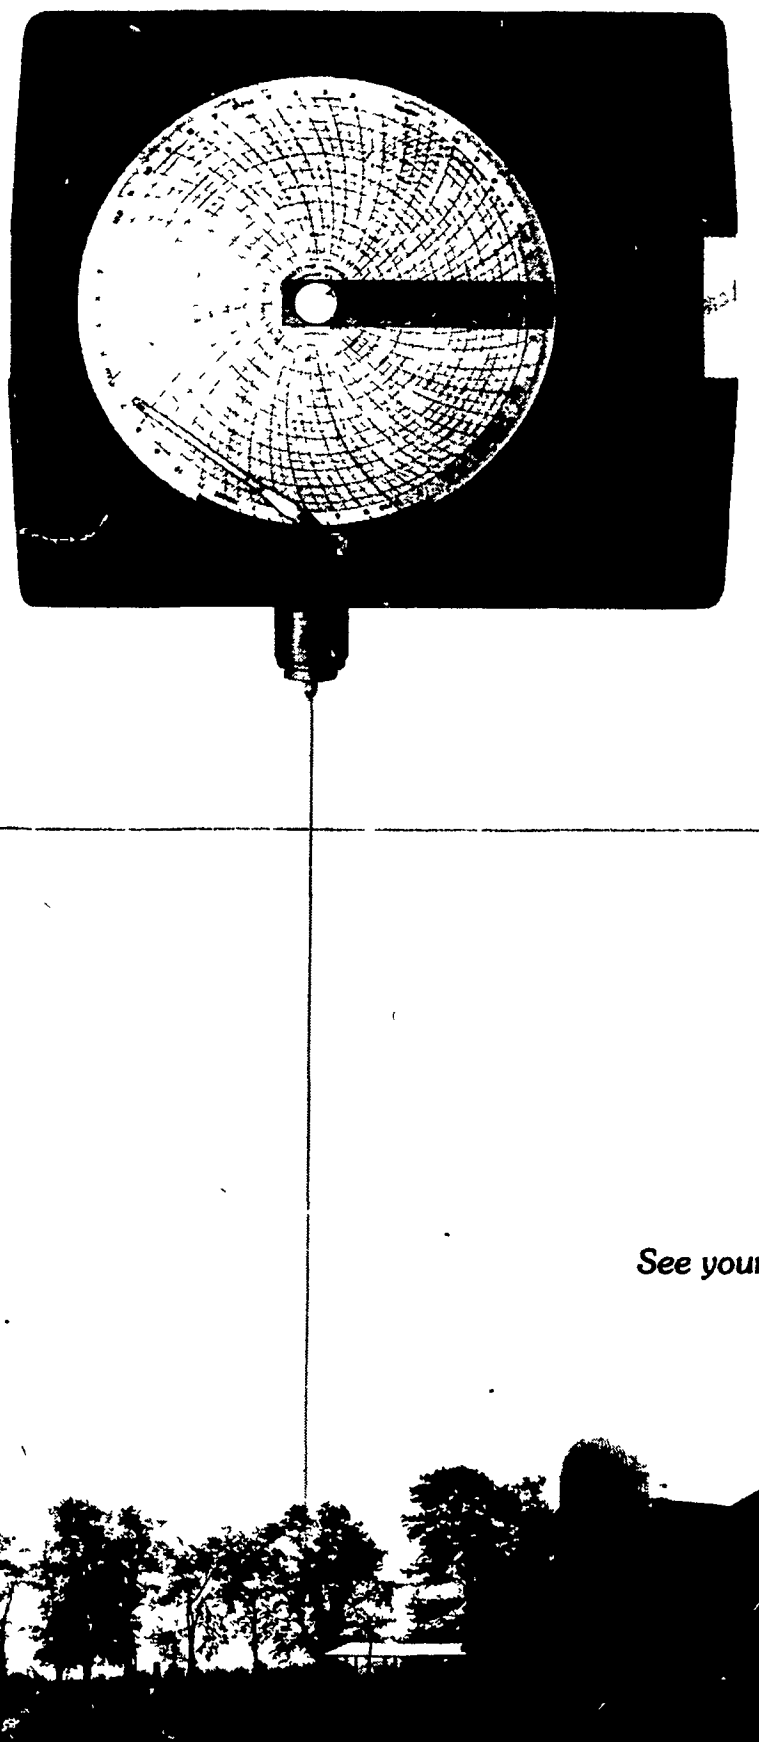
It was on such a day that a man in a station wagon pulled up to the farm in answer to a call for help. The husky, former high school football star stepped out to greet me and we walked up to the implement shed. There, directly in front of us, was the object of my concern: our largest tractor. Used extensively for years without receiving the best or even adequate care, it had literally died last Fall. It didn't have the power to pull itself, let alone a corn picker or plow. Now buried beneath dust, cobwebs, and a few bird droppings, the tractor looked hopelessly in need of an overhaul. My friend, Ben, had come to evaluate the situation. It was time for me to decide for either a newer model tractor or major repairs. Either way, I had visions of a sizable amount of dollars streaming out of checking account.

With the battery dead, Ben attempted to start the engine by spinning the pulley on the side. That didn't work either and so we pushed the tractor out of the shed and down the hill to the road where Ben's station wagon was parked. A heavy pair of jumper cables finally sparked life into it and the two cylinders spit and sputtered for several minutes before changing to a steady, rhythmic pounding. Nevertheless, Ben's verdict of "the tractor is shot" came as no surprise and I was trying to mentally prepare myself for the costs of purchasing a newer model.

Carefully checking various items, Ben, a tractor and implement dealer, said he could fix the tractor for $350, adding that this particular series of tractors made by the company he represented was the best for the money. I accepted his assessment with a mixture of happiness and surprise because I had expected the ordeal to be much more expensive. A truck stopped by several days later to take the machine to the shop.

Spring field work was more enjoyable than ever before during that and following seasons. I had a tractor, proudly called "Big John," which was in A-1 shape, and as every farmer knows, that's what it takes to get the jobs done. What's more, the eventual costs of repairs amounted to less than half of the original estimate. All in all, the episode resulted in a more pleasant life on the farm.

THE SENTINEL



Round-the-clock guardian of stored milk temperature

If you depend upon your milk check for a living, protect that income by insuring milk quality.

The least expensive, single-payment insurance obtainable is the Sentinel — the heavy-duty, 10-inch recorder which charts round-the-clock temperature of your milk-cooling or holding tank.

Assure yourself — and your processor — that proper milk temperature is always maintained.

Keep a permanent log of compressor operation and tank cooling or pre-cooling efficiency, from first filling to pickup.

Cleaning temperatures — increasingly questioned by sanitarians — are recorded on the same chart.

At little added cost, the Sentinel is available with provision for actuating an alarm or warning light if milk holding temperature rises above pre-set level.

Remember — if it prevents the loss of only one tank of milk, the Sentinel has paid its own way.

Palm oil imports jeopardizing soybean industry; prices may rise

WASHINGTON - The National Soybean Processors Association (NSPA) recently called on the U.S. government to end its support of international subsidies for foreign palm oil production, to negotiate a mandatory import quota on palm oil, and to establish a duty on its importation.

Lowell K. Rasmussen, president of the Association, said that the 100 percent increase in U.S palm oil imports in 1975 was spurred in large part by subsidized palm oil production funded through loans from international agencies such as the World Bank. The U.S government continues to endorse loan applications form Southeast Asian governments for expansion of palm oil output, and is known to provide most of the loan money used by the World Bank.

In announcing the NSPA position, Rasmussen noted that accelerating palm oil imports have reduced consumption of American vegetable oils, and have precipitated substantial losses in U.S. farm sales of soybeans. In an analytical paper also released today, entitled "The Problem of Palm Oil," the Association explained that the price-undercutting impact of subsidized palm oil on demand for soybean oil will have the effect of increasing the price of soybean meal, a leading high-protein animal feed. That, in turn, will mean American consumers will face increased prices for meat, poultry and dairy products.

Rasmussen said: "There is bitter irony in the U.S. Government supporting foreign palm oil producers with the money of American taxpayers, who, because of that, will have to pay increased prices for food products at home."

The Association emphasized the damage of subsidized palm oil imports on the American farmer, recalling that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has estimated that sales of 43 million bushels of soybeans to domestic edible oil users were lost in 1975 as a direct result of increased palm oil imports.

NSPA pointed out that the U.S. is the only major economy in the world that imposes no duties or other restrictions on imported palm oil. Rasmussen concluded: "Other Western governments have moved to counterweigh the artificial advantages possessed by palm oil, in order to place their own domestic vegetable oils and related products on an equal and fair basis in trade. The U.S. must do the same."

It's an Ag-fact

It's an ag-fact. The task of feeding and clothing the U.S. population requires at least 30 times more land than the amount needed for all the housing in cities, towns and suburbs throughout the nation.

Students oppose strikes

The Student Advisory Board, the representative of the students of Pennsylvania, has becomed alarmed at the rapid increase of educational strikes. In the opinion of this board there are a few questions which have been overlooked or just blatently neglected:

(1) Is the student's inalienable right to a quality education being violated by educational strikes?

(2) Have the teachers abused the right to strike granted them in Act 195?

(3) Do school boards use prolonged strikes as a strictly political move?

(4) Do teachers use educational demands in their proposals as a ploy to play on the sympathy of the public and is the bottom line in educational strikes really money?

The Student Advisory Board would like to see a statewide reassessment of strike policy with these and other student oriented questions in mind.

The students of the state of Pennsylvania demand and expect a quality education; an education that exists because of students, not in spite of them.

'Festival 76' to be aired

HERSHEY — WITF-TV, Channel 33, is among 163 of the nation's public television stations participating in a unique event in American television history March 7 through 21. The occasion is "Festival '76," a 15-day celebration of some of the most outstanding television programs and feature films produced in the United States and abroad, many of them winners of national and international prizes.

Probably the first time that the concept of an international festival of outstanding productions has ever been brought to television in this country, "Festival '76" will present exciting and noteworthy dramatic specials, entertainment programs, documentaries and feature films.

Some of the major personalities featured in the "Festival '76" entertainment programs include: Steve Allen, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Arthur Fiedler and The Boston Pops, Mel Torme, Woody Herman, Max Morath, Jason Robards, Coleen Dewhurst, Charlton Heston, Laurel and Hardy, and Willi Boskovsky and the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra.

In the field of documentaries, "Festival '76" will offer programs on France's little sparrow, Edith Piaf; Antarctica's Adelie Penguins; the Pygmies of the Central African Republic; and a revolutionary method of childbirth.

Sports specials during "Festival '76" will include film coverage of the 1973-74 "Round the World Yacht Race," an irreverant look at the activities behind-the-scenes at the 1976 Superbowl Game and live coverage of the World Cup Tennis Finals.

A special highlight of "Festival '76" will be the American television premiers of two 1975 International Emmy award winners: "Marek," a documentary about a young boy who undergoes an unsuccessful heart operation; and "The Evacuees," a drama about two young Jewish boys in England at the start of World War II.

Classic motion pictures scheduled for "Festival '76" include "The Red Shoes," "Waltz of the Toreadors" with Peter Sellers, "Hobson's Choice" with Charles Laughton, Francois Truffaut's "The 400 Blows," "Black Orpheus," "Lavender Hill Mob" with Alec Guinness, and "The Importance of Being Earnest" with Michael Redgrave and Edith Evans.

"Festival '76" is a part of a major public television effort to increase the level of non-federal monetary support to the medium.

Food additives in the news

Oregano, nonfat dry milk, and citric acid seem too dissimilar to be grouped under one classification. But all three — a spice, a binder, and a chemical preservative — do have something in common. They are food additives, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

According to USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), food additives approved for use in meat and poultry products are divided into three basic categories:

- Flavoring components, which are added to food for flavoring purposes only, such as sugar, garlic, pepper, oregano and other spices and herbs.

- Nutritional substances and substances added to produce a physical effect that also have nutritional value as a food. For example, whey products, nonfat dry milk powder, flours, starches, and other similar extenders help bind together ingredients as well as add nutritional value to meat products such as sausages, luncheon meats, and meat patties.

- Substances which are intended only to affect the product's physical characteristics, such as gums, cures, phosphates, and antioxidants. For example, citric acid, a chemical preservative, may be used in cured pork and beef cuts and sausage products to maintain color during storage. These substances usually have little or no nutritional value as a food.

The initial safety of food additives is determined by the Food and Drug Administration. However, if an additive is to be used in conjunction with meat or poultry products, it also must be approved by USDA.

USDA must determine that the additive will not cause a meat or poultry product to be adulterated or misbranded; establish appropriate limits or restrictions on the additive's use in meat or poultry products; and determine that the additive is effective and produces the intended result in the product.

Inspirations to appear at local high schools

Editor's Note: The following article is a biographical sketch of the Inspiring Inspirations, a gospel quartet, which will be appearing at the Lancaster Mennonite High School on March 13 at 7:30 p.m. and at the J. Frank Faust High School in Chambersburg on March 12 at 7:30 p.m. The group will be appearing under the auspices of the Garden Spot Promotions Co.

Originating in the heart of God; developed in the Word and Will of God; this is The Inspiring Inspirations.

A young, versatile group of Christian Gentlemen have pounded their pathway into the hearts of thousands of Gospel Music Lovers all across America since their beginning in 1964.

Many people herald them as the ultimate in Gospel Quartets. This was emphasized in 1970 when CBS News did a ten-minute documentary on The Inspirations. In 1972 they were voted by America's Gospel Music fans as the Number One Gospel Group. Their tenor, Archie Watkins, was named the Number One Tenor. In 1973, Martin Cook was voted the Number One Musician, Archie Watkins was voted the Number One Tenor, and Eddie Deitz was acclaimed the Number One Baritone. In 1974, Mr. Archie Watkins, Tenor for The Inspirations, was voted the most coveted single award in Gospel Music, that of Mr. Gospel Singer — Big Mike Holcomb was also voted as the Number One Bass Singer —The Inspirations were also highly honored by receiving the votes as America's Number One Gospel Singing Group. In 1975 Archie Watkins was voted again Mr. Gospel Singer — Mike Holcomb was again voted number one bass singer, Eddie Deitz was voted number one baritone and The Inspirations once again got the Number One Gospel Singing Group.

They appear weekly on the nationally syndicated award-winning Gospel Singing Jubilee.

These are many honors bestowed upon this group of men, yet the gentlemen accept them humbly. Their main purpose is to witness through the medium of Gospel Music to a needful world.

If you hear or see an enthusiastic, sincere, clean-cut group of Christian gentlemen coming to your area to perform for you, check the name carefully . . . It could be The Inspiring Inspirations.

Yours for His Service: Martin Cook, Pianist; Jack Laws, Bass Guitar; Roger Fortner, Lead Guitar; Big Mike Holcomb, Bass; Eddie Deitz, Baritone; Troy Burns, Lead; and Archie Watkins, Tenor.

Seed pamphlet printed

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The practical deadline for home gardeners to order plants and seeds is fast approaching — if you want to avoid the flood of requests that seed and nursery companies will soon be receiving.

But, whether you order through the mail or buy seeds locally, first acquaint yourself with a listing of the seed varieties recommended for your state. Here in Maryland, such a list is compiled annually by vegetable specialists in the horticulture department at the University of Maryland in College Park. It is titled Vegetable Varieties for Maryland Home Gardens (Cooperative Extension Service Leaflet 15).

Beef grading revised, studies to continue

Revised U.S. grade standards for carcass beef, designed to improve their accuracy for measuring eating quality and identifying yield of saleable beef went into effect Feb. 23.

Officials of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) point out that although the changes are not drastic, they will add precision and efficiency to beef production and marketing.

Immediate effects of the changes to the consumer-buyer will be threefold according to AMS officials. There will be slightly leaner beef in the Prime and Choice grades, a redesigned and more restricitive Good grade, and more uniform eating quality of the beef in the Good and Choice grades

AMS officials cited the most significant effect, however, as a long range one - a possible reduction in the amount of excess fat on high quality beef. This could result from the requirement that all federally graded beef be identified for both quality and grade and yield grade. Previously, beef could be graded for either quality or yield, or both.

The use of both quality and yield grades will provide a more precise measurement of the factors affecting carcass value and this could provide the guidance and financial incentive needed to encourage the increased production of meat-type cattle. Such high-value cattle have thickly muscled carcasses with high quality lean and a minimum of excess fat.

AMS officials emphasize that the revised beef grade standards will be under close surveillance to determine their use and effectiveness. Development and improvement of grade standards is a continuing function that involves USDA's evaluation of information from its own research and that of State experiment stations and private industry. New studies also are initiated as specific needs for information are identified. One study planned after the revised standards have become fully established will be to determine their economic effects under market conditions.

The changes were previously scheduled to become effective in April 1975, but were postponed by a series of court actions.

Price index drops

HARRISBURG — The February 15, 1976 Index of Prices Received by Pennsylvania farmers was one percent below the previous month but 15 percent above a year earlier, according to the Crop Reporting Service.

Higher prices for hay, potatoes, apples and most grains were more than offset by the decrease in prices received for hogs, steers and heifers, lambs and dairy and poultry products.

The purchasing power of prices received was one percentage point below January but still six percentage points above a year ago.

Nationally the Index of Prices Received increased about one percent over the past month and was 11 percent above a year ago. Contributing most to the increase since mid-January were higher prices for wheat, cattle, calves, hogs and potatoes. The purchasing power at the U.S. level increased one percentage point since mid-January and was four percent above a year ago.

The high herd in the Berks County DHIA testing program for January belonged to Charles Plushanski. His 75 head of Holsteins pumped out an average of 1.98 pounds of butterfat per head. The individual butterfat leader for the month also came out of the Plushanski herd. "Fuzzy," a five-year-old, finished her 305-day lactation with 23,281 pounds of milk and 967 of butterfat. A cow named "Lisa" in Andrew Stoltzfus' herd checked in with the high lactation for milk — 25,457 pounds with 854 of butterfat.

They're surrounded by history, urban sprawl

Editor's Note: This is the 6th in a continuing series of feature articles describing farms in southeastern-southcentral Pa. which have been in the same family for 100 or more years. It is LANCASTER FARMING'S way of recognizing and saluting agriculture - the foundation of civilization everywhere.

By DIETER KRIEG

BLUE BELL - Located just 18 miles northeast of downtown Philadelphia, the Zimmerman's "Silver Lake Farm" is hemmed in by developments, the northeast extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, and urban sprawl in general. It's one of the last farms in the area, and was THE last dairy farm to go out of business.

Purchased by William Zimmerman in 1775, the original farm contained as many as 830 acres according to some accounts. It has been whittled down to 98 acres. Two brothers, Edward and Merrill Zimmerman, and their wives, Blanche and Louise, are the property's present owners. Their large two-family house contains a section which was erected by the farm's first owner in 1752. Built of stones held together by a lime mortar, the walls are 18 inches thick.

History was in the making when William Zimmerman and his family moved to the farm. The Revolutionary War was in progress. Valley Forge is only eight miles southwest of here, Germantown is nearby, and Washington's Crossing is within easy riding distance. General Washington was in the vicinity and wounded Continental soldiers were treated within two miles of their house. But according to the Zimmerman family their ancestors didn't participate in the Revolution very much. Farming was their profession and they were needed to provide food not only for their own families but for soldiers as well.

Up until six years ago the Zimmermans were still milking cows - a tradition which had started on a "business scale" in 1804. They were retailing their own milk from 1934 up until the time they closed down in 1970 as a result of economic and urbanization pressures.

Edward Zimmerman still farms the original homestead along with other acreages in this area. When the family had the dairy business, he farmed a total of 450 acres, he said. Now he boards a herd of dairy heifers in his old, well kept barn (built in 1804 out of stones and hand-hewn timbers) and raises hay. Most of his farming income, however, comes from custom work - something he has been invloved with since the days when he first started farming. He fashioned his own self-propelled custom silage harvester in the late 1940's and was one of only six men in the United States to have participated in the Farmers Exchange Program in 1956. The program is for farmers interested in world affairs and provides such men with opportunities to visit foreign agricultural communities. Zimmerman visited Denmark, Venezuela and Italy.

Although Merrill Zimmerman is no longer a full-time farmer, he is a partner in the "Silver Lake Farm" operation and shared the "Master Farmer" award with his brother in 1960.

The Zimmerman family came to the United States as a result of religious differences which arose between John

A 200-year old farm, surrounded by history, is a source of pride for Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Zimmerman.

Bicentennial farm

Jacob Zimmerman, a professor at the University of Heidelberg, Germany, and university authorities. John Jacob and his wife Margaretta packed their things and headed for the New World. The old gentleman died in Holland, but his wife and children arrived safely in Philadelphia's German settlement in the late 17th century.

Blanche Zimmerman has done much of the research concerning the family's roots. Not too many family records were kept, but the Montgomery County Historical Society lists much of the information in its books. The original sheep skin deed signed by one of William Penn's deputies is among the Zimmermans' heirlooms.

Although it's not known for sure, it's suspected that most of the farm was wooded even after settlers had pretty well established themselves. There are no accounts of hostile encounters with Indians, something which Blanche Zimmerman attributes to the generally kind attitude William Penn had towards these people.

The Zimmermans weren't able to furnish financial statistics for their farm from 200 years ago, but they do have ledger books which are nearly 100 years old. Here are a few prices from the year 1882:

Twelve quarts of cream sold for $3.00. Fee for shoeing a horse - 25 cents. Four pounds of sugar cost 32 cents; two pounds of raisins were a quarter. Ten dozen eggs brought $2.10 and 10 pounds of butter were sold for $3.90. One bushel salt cost 40 cents, a pair of shoes $1.60, two bushels of potatoes $2.48 and 100 pounds flour $3.50.

In 1886 the economic picture showed: One bull sold for $45.00; one cow brought $18.00; two calves were sold for $5.50 and ten dozen eggs were priced at $1.70 (June) and $3.80 in December.

The Zimmermans tell of stories when the milk train chugged through the countryside to pick up milk at 5 a.m. Yes, the dairyman had to be done milking his cows by that time if he wanted to see his product go to market, Edward affirmed. He also related how loads of hay from his farm were taken into Philadelphia twice a week to supply the livery stables. The farmer would leave early in the morning, deliver the hay, then load his wagon with manure for the return trip, and arrive back home late in the day. "The horses found their own way back while the driver caught up with some needed sleep," Zimmerman said.

Times and prices have changed since then. Today the Zimmerman farm has two sets of powerline towers, a sewage line, and the Pennsylvania Turnpike cutting through it. Then there are bike and snowmobile trails, and an expanding population which is spilling on to the farm land. Taxes last year approached $4,000.

"Sliver Lake Farm" has been farmed for 200 continuous years, but its years are probably numbered. "You can't farm here anymore," Edward Zimmerman concluded.

Ag film released

WASHINGTON - A new film aimed at agricultural and nonagricultural audiences alike and highlighting some of the continuing contributions of agricultural research, has recently been released. Title "Unfinished Miracles," the 28-½ minute color film is available on loan from the state agricultural experiment station in each state.

The experiment stations - most of them located at the land-grant university in each state-are themselves the subject of the film. The film looks at some of the past contributions of research at these stations such as new high-yielding crop varieties, insect and pest control, development of the drug dicumarol that prevents blood clotting, and machinery for crop harvesting.

NEPPCO plans European tours

Two USA Tours to the fifth European Poultry Conference to be held on the Island of Malta in September are being organized by Richard I. Ammon, vice president of the USA Branch of the World's Poultry Science Association.

The first is an 8-day trip designed for poultry businessmen and scientists who wish to attend the Conference, but do not have the time or inclination for additional travel. It will leave New York on the evening of Sept. 4 by Pan Am jet, arriving in Malta the afternoon of Sept. 5. The Conference opens Sunday evening, Sept. 5 and continues through Saturday, Sept. 11. Accommodations for the group during the Conference have been made at the deluxe, 5-star Grand Hotel Verdala, about 10 minutes drive from the Corinthia Hotel, site of the Conference. The group will return to New York on Sunday, Sept. 12.

The second tour is a 15-day trip to Malta and Spain. It will leave New York on Sept. 6, arriving in Malta the afternoon of Sept. 7. Participants will also be housed in the Grand Hotel Verdala until Sunday, Sept. 12, when they will fly to Madrid for several days, then on to Seville, Cordoba and Granada, concluding with three days at the Atalaya Park Hotel & Country Club at Estepona on the Costa del Sol. A number of meetings with Spanish poultry industrymen will be held when the group tours that country.

"Both tours are limited to a maximum of 42 persons each," Ammon reports, "and over a dozen people signed up for the 15-day Malta-Spain trip within the first week after it was formally announced."

The European Poultry Conference, held every four years, is sponsored jointly by the European Branches of the World's Poultry Science Association. It will follow a program similar to World Poultry Congresses with scientific sessions each morning featuring both invited speakers and contributed papers. Afternoons will be divided between symposia and tours. During the afternoon and evening of September 8, Conference delegates will participate in special celebrations marking Malta's Independence Day. At the closing ceremonies on Saturday evening, Sept. 11, they will be feted to a lavish banquet and Maltese Folklore Dance.

The Conference will also include an Exhibition of poultry equipment, supplies and services. The Corinthia Hotel, site of the Conference and Exhibits, is in the town of Attard in the center of the Island.

Malta, which is only 17 miles long and 9 miles wide, is located in the Mediterranean between Sicily and the coast of Africa. Its history goes back well over 2,000 years. St. Paul was shipwrecked there and dwelt on the Island for many months. It is the ancient home of the Knights of Malta, crossroad of the Crusades and battleground of Napoleon.

Full details and a brochure about the USA Poultry Study Tours to Malta & Spain are available from Richard I. Ammon, c-o NEPPCO, 322 Oxford Valley Road, Fairless Hills, PA 19030.

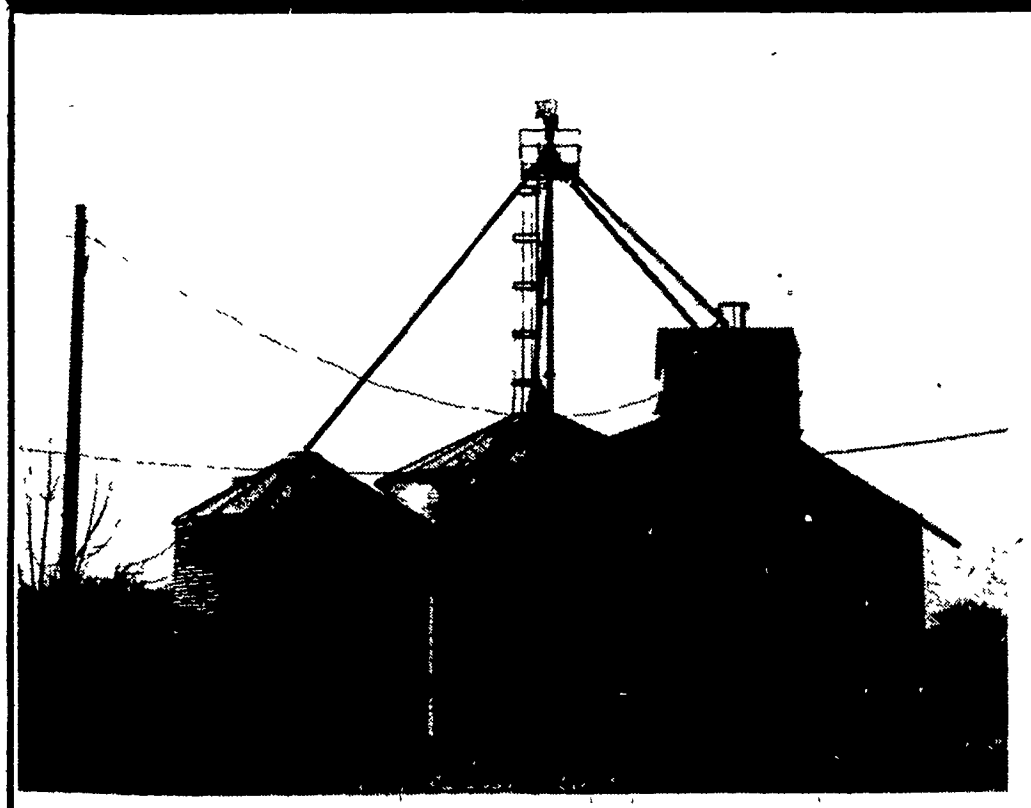
AUTOMATIC FEED PROCESSING SYSTEM

WITH STORAGE BINS.



Located on the Irvin Rutt farm RD5, Manheim, PA.

With this system Irvin automatically grinds and mixes feed for 2500 hogs.

Irvin said in a very few words:

"I sure am happy with this feed processing system."

This system is capable of drawing grain from the storage bins into the overhead storage in the feed factory, by use of the elevator. The feed factory has four compartments where additional ingredients can flow by gravity down into the mixer grinder.

This is where the pre-mix and all ingredients are accurately metered, ground and mixed into a complete feed. The discharge auger conveys the finished feed into the blower wagon for distribution to his houses.

With this system Irvin makes his own feed automatically while he goes about doing his other chores.

WHY NOT INQUIRE WHAT A SYSTEM LIKE THIS CAN DO FOR YOU?

Researchers say rice can be used in cement

UNIVERSITY PARK — Researchers at The Pennsylvania State University are investigating a way rice can be used in the making of cement. It's a study that could have major implications for underdeveloped countries, as well as for the rice industry.

Paul R. Groney, of West Springfield, Pa., a graduate student in civil engineering, and his research director, Dr. Philip D. Cady, professor of civil engineering, have found that silica — along with lime, a major ingredient in one type of cement — can be obtained from burning rice hulls.

The researchers have discovered that ash obtained from burning hulls constitutes 15 to 20 percent of the hulls' weight; 95 percent of this ash is silica. They think that the use of the silica from rice for cement making can help to solve a costly. disposal problem for the rice industry, in addition to providing a "cottage-level" industry for many underdeveloped nations.

The disposal of rice hulls, say Dr. Cady and Groney, now poses a problem for the rice industry — ash from the burned hulls cannot be put into land fills because it makes soil conditions unstable.

"In the United States alone," Dr. Cady advises, "there annually are, based on the latest figures available, over 800,000 tons of rice hulls which contain approximately 118,000 tons of silica. Using two parts of lime to one part of silica, this would make about 354,000 tons of cement.

"We roughly estimate that companies are paying about $3.50 per ton for disposal of the rice hulls. So, we're talking about nearly three million dollars per year just for disposal."

While the "rice-hull cement" is not as strong as the more common Portland cement, it would be extremely beneficial to poor, underdeveloped countries where rice is bountiful for use in single-family dwellings and building foundations, say the researchers. Too, it is more durable than Portland cement in areas which contain sulfates, such as locations near sea and ground water, because sulfates attack the aluminous component of Portland cement.

Dr. Cady adds that the new cement could be used in the building and construction industries in the United States when mass, not strength, is required.

Dr. Cady, a member of VITA (Volunteers in Technical Assistance), became involved in the rice hull project when he was asked by the technical director of VITA to develop a method for the small-scale manufacture of lime and cement in underdeveloped countries.

Rain forests used for ag expansion mismanaged

UNIVERSITY PARK — Misunderstanding and mismanagement are destroying the world's jungles and they could be gone in 20 years, says Penn State's David L. Pearson, an internationally known specialist in tropical rain forest ecology.

Tropical rain forests, he contends, determine weather patterns, form one of the last potential sites for agricultural expansion, and contain a living chronicle of earth's evolutionary history.

"They are the most complex ecosystems on earth," he adds, "and the terrestrial area we know the least about."

Dr. Pearson, assistant professor of biology, has conducted research in rain forests throughout the world and has published over a dozen scholarly papers on jungle ecology over the last four years. Recently, he was invited to be a featured speaker at the Fourth Pan African Ornithological Congress to be held later this year in the Seychelles Islands.

Pearson frequently focuses on birds in his research because, he says, "they are the one tropical group about which scientists already know a great deal and are also good subjects with which to test general ecological patterns."

To illustrate, Pearson explains that tropical rain forests contain the greatest variety of bird species of any area on earth — more than 400 in a 300-mile-square area versus about 100 in a similar forest area in the eastern U.S.

"This pattern of extreme diversity, along with a similar pattern in plants, suggests that traditional one-crop agriculture (monoculture) will not work in these areas," he says. "And, in fact, wherever monoculture has been attempted, it has invariably failed."

In the jungle, Pearson notes, nutrients are not stored in the soil but are maintained in the plants and animals. Leaf litter and other organic debris is almost immediately recycled and reabsorbed into the plants.

Wholesale clear-cutting, as practiced in eastern Peru, for example, leaves behind relatively infertile soil and leads to altered weather patterns via increased convection currents, dissipation of rain storms and an eventual drying up of the region.

In addition, the jungle's disappearance robs scientists of a unique opportunity to study evolution, Pearson believes. "Rain forests may be the areas in which birds originated," he says, "and they probably give a more accurate insight into normal bird communities than any other place on earth."

Tropical rain forests occur in a broad band circling the globe near the equator. Although they are radically different from forests in temperate areas, Pearson says they rarely fit the popular image of hot, steamy, impenetrable tangles of vegetation teeming with hostile tribes and ferocious beasts. He says the forest floor is actually darkly shaded by the taller trees, there is little ground cover, and travel is fairly easy. Local tribesmen are usually friendly and helpful and hostile animals are rarely encountered. Pearson admits that the jungle does hold some discomforts — mosquitos, for example — but he claims to have met more annoying varieties in Minnesota. "All in all," he says, "tropical rain forests are benign and comfortable places.

Wine grape growers to meet

LANCASTER - A special salute to Pennsylvania's wine grape growers will be given at a meeting of the Southeast Grape Industry Association on Sunday, March 7 at the Farm & Home Center, Arcadia Road, Lancaster. Members from the fourteen wine grape growing counties of southeastern Pennsylvania will attend, plus invited guests from nearby states.

Featured speaker will be Robert M. Ivie, president of Guild Wineries and Distilleries, San Francisco, the nation's largest grower-owned wine and brandy producing cooperative. Guild markets such well-known brands as Winemasters Guild, Cresta Blanca, Roma, Tavola and Cribari.

Special guests will be Pennsylvania's Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jane M. Alexander, a leader in promoting wine grape growing in Pennsylvania, and State Representative Marvin E. Miller of Lancaster County.

Mr. Ivie, whose firm has wine-producing facilities in California with an annual crushing capacity of 250,000 tons of grapes, will speak on "The Demand for Wine."

The wine grape growing areas of southeastern Pennsylvania are attracting national interest and may develop into one of the major wine-producing regions of the U S Wine consumption is growing rapidly throughout the country, exceeding 360 million gallons last year This figure is expected to double during the next decade and thousands of dollars have been invested in Pennsylvania vineyards to help meet the demand. Leading wine grape growing counties are Lancaster, Bucks, York, Berks, Adams and Franklin.

Awards presented at 34th Kutztown banquet

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks Co. Correspondent

KUTZTOWN — A hefty bulletin summarizing the past year's activities and accomplishments of the Kutztown Area FFA and YFA members in local, county and state events gave evidence that a lot of hard work had gone into action, but Monday night at the Kutztown Grange Hall was a time for relaxation and recognition. One hundred and sixty-nine members and friends attended the Thirty-fourth Annual Vocational Agriculture Banquet of the Kutztown Area School District sponsored by the Kutztown Area FFA-YFA which marked the end of the organization's calendar year. The highlights of the evening were the presentation of the Chapter Award Winners and entertainment in the form of a very lively sale.

Toastmaster for the occasion was Robert Ketterer, President of the Kutztown Chapter YFA, and Master of Ceremonies of the program which followed the dinner was Ronald Flicker, President of the Kutztown Chapter FFA. Greetings from the State FFA were conveyed by Bill Abrams, State Treasurer, followed by the Ceremony of Receiving Honorary Members conducted by the Chapter Officers. Individuals awarded Honorary Membership for their contributions to a successful year were: Paul Siegfried, Father of Keystone Farmer, Dale Siegfried; Lester Breininger, Poultry Processor, Hamburg; Harold Ernst, Kutztown Agway Manager; Barry Adams, Social Studies Dept., Kutztown Area High School; and Sandra Hartman, Teacher Aide, Vo-Ag Dept., Kutztown Area High School. The award program continued with the presentation of 24 Chapter Awards to 14 individuals in four categories.

Winners of the National FFA Foundation Medals were: Lloyd Adam, two medals, Outdoor Recreation and Agriculture Electrification; Donald Dietrich, three medals, Crop Production, Ornamental Horticulture, and Swine Production; Ronald Flicker, two medals, Agriculture Electrification and Placement in Sales and Service; Michele Gladney, two medals, Placement in Agriculture Production and Public Speaking; Tim Kleinsmith, Poultry Production; Leon Moll, Soil, Water and Air Management; Dwight Romig, Agriculture Mechanics; and Kenneth Sanner, Beef Production.

In the Special Award category: Kenneth Sanner received the award for Scholarship; Dale Siegfried was the recipient of the Keystone Farmer Pin and the award for Production Credit Ass'n Area Winner; and Jeffrey Miller received an award as Production Credit Ass'n State Winner.

Chapter Star Awards were presented to Larry Shrawder, Star Greenhand; Ronald Flicker, Chapter Star Agribusinessman; and Kenneth Sanner; Chapter Star Farmer.

The Young Farmer Awards were presented to Elwood Ohlinger as the Outstanding Young Farmer Over 30, and to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Meyers for Community Service.

Following a brief comment by FFA State Reporter, Robert Stoltzfus, the Chapter Officers conducted the closing ceremony which brought the evening to its final event, the entertainment portion of the program.

Entertaining it proved to be as the "Slave Sale" got under way. As each "slave" appeared from behind the stage curtain, sometimes requiring a helpful push, Ronald Flicker read the appropriate work qualifications to prospective bidders. Nelson Blatt auctioneered the bidding which was accompanied by a lot of good-natured exchange between the audience and the slaves. In all, 20 young men and two young ladies were presented to the bidders with the surprise addition of Teacher-Advisors Donald W. Reinert and Ben Newcomer just before the sale ended. A total of 24 slaves were sold for $94.25 per hour for an average of $3.63 per hour. Top sellers of the evening were Michele Gladney and Ken Sanner at a whopping $11.75 per hour each. The purchaser of each slave sold Monday night must employ him or her for a minimum of four to a maximum of eight hours at the purchased price. Proceeds of the sale are used to finance an educational group trip. The Slave Sale, included in the banquet program for the second consecutive year, was so obviously enjoyed by all that it seems certain to become an annual event.

FFA Winners

1975 farm exports push U.S. trade to record surplus

Farm exports were mainly responsible for a new record over-all U.S. trade surplus during calendar 1975. It all came about despite a slight dip in farm exports for the year.

Here's how it worked out: Though farm exports dipped from $22 billion in 1974 to $21.9 billion in 1975, farm imports dipped even more — from $10.25 billion in 1974 to $9.3 billion. This pushed the agricultural trade surplus to a record $12.6 billion, up from a previous high of $11.7 billion in 1974.

The agricultural trade surplus more than offset an non-ag trade deficit to give the U.S. a trade surplus of $10.3 billion for the year, topping a previous high (of $10.275 billion) set more than 30 years earlier (in 1944).

The slight dip in agricultural exports came about as the result of lower prices that more than offset higher volumes. Over-all volume was up 7 pct.

As a result, though exports of wheat, at 32.0 million tons, were up 22 pct. from a year earlier, nearly 50 pct. above that of 1972, the value of wheat exports, at $5.353 billion, was up only 16 pct. from a year earlier ... While the volume of soybean exports, at 12.5 million tons, was down 10 pct., the value of soybean exports, at $2.865 billion, was off 19 pct.

While the volume of rice exports, at 2.1 million tons, was up 24 pct., the value of rice exports, at $858 million, was up only 1 pct.

One exception to the rule: Feed grain exports, at 40.4 million tons, were up 8 pct., but value of feed grain exports, at $5.239 billion, was up 13 pct.

when cows go out to pasture...

Agway LPS keeps you on top of your feeding program

When cows are turned out, the new element of fresh pasture is suddenly added to their diet. It can spell trouble.

But when Agway Liquid Protein Supplement (LPS) is readily available to act as a shock absorber, your cows can easily adjust to differences in feed sources and nutrient content. And your milk checks never know the difference.

The easy, labor-free way to guard against pasture shock is to put an Agway LPS lickwheel feeder in your cow and heifer pastures.

Free-choice intake of LPS also serves as a barometer to indicate the nutritional adequacy of your whole feeding program.

Agway LPS . . . your best milk-check insurance

If consumption of free-choice LPS increases sharply, it's a danger signal that the protein level of your basic feeding program may be consistently low.

If that is the case, Agway can help you get back on the right track with a Total Dairy Ration (TDR) Profile—a $15 value that costs you nothing.

Free TDR Profile from Agway . . . your guide to balanced feeding

TDR is a computer program that considers total protein, energy and fiber needs plus calcium/phosphorus and forage/grain ration. It spells out a number of ways to balance out your homegrown feedstuffs for maximum milk production.

Using a TDR Profile, you and your Agway Enterprise man can determine which Agway Ratio:Right® feed will assure you the most economical and profitable approach to your operation.

Agway LPS. A free Agway TDR Profile. Agway Ratio:Right feeds. Take steps now to protect your milk checks. Call Agway today.

FREY FREE STALL

LIFETIME FREE STALL HOUSING

Cut bedding costs 75 per cent, reduce labor for barn cleaning and cow washing; reduce teat and udder injury to the minimum — house your milking herd in free stall housing. Each cow provided a stall for loafing. She won't be stepped on, the rear curb forces manure out into alley for mechanical cleaning or washing. A few minutes twice a day cleans the stalls and curbs, bedding lasts almost forever if your stalls fit the cows. Popular sizes are 6'6", 7' and 7'6". Size 'em by breed.

Our free stall partition may be mounted on wooden head boards or we make a steel divider. Set the legs in 8 to 10" concrete curbs to hold and retain bedding. Stall floor can be soil, sand or gravel. Bedding — straw, sawdust, peanut hulls, ground corn cobs, etc. Should be installed with paved alley surface 8 feet wide for mechanical cleaning or washing.

- 8 Models all steel welded farm and feedlot gates
- 2 Models all steel welded head catch gate

Canning lid supply to almost double

The supply of home canning lids for 1976 will be almost double the amount produced last year, according to Nancy Harvey Steorts, special assistant for consumer affairs to the U.S. secretary of agriculture.

The increase is due to additional lines placed into production by the traditional canning lid manufacturers, plus the entry of new manufacturers in the market, Mrs Steorts said.

Based on figures supplied by a majority of the manufacturers, more than 4 billion replacement lids will be available for the 1976 home canning season. This compares with just over 2 billion produced last year.

The total number of lids for this year, Mrs. Steorts said, will include nearly 3 billion regular size lids, more than one-third billion wide mouth lids, well over one-half billion regular caps (lids and rings sold together), and nearly 150 million wide mouth caps available during the 1976 home canning season.

Mrs. Steorts said the pattern of distribution follows that of previous years with lids being shipped into southern states first and moving northward as the canning season approaches. However, some manufacturers will ship to all sections routinely, with heavier concentration of shipments when actual canning is underway.

Labor law inspections increase

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland farmers who hire migrant and local seasonal labor will undergo a great number of on-spot inspections this year by representatives of the State's Department of Human Resources due to a recent federal court ruling.

The State Department of Human Resources has informed the Maryland Department of Agriculture that, under terms of a recent court ruling, they will be required to:

1. Register all migrant and seasonal farm workers.
2. Verify all crew leader registrations.
3. Monitor "day hauls" for violations. (A day haul is the daily pick up and return transportation service of farm workers to and from the fields. The practice is rare in Maryland).
4. Prepare interstate-job orders. First preference under law must be given to so-called "domestic labor". If this is not in supply, then foreign supplemental workers may be requested.
5. Perform wage rate studies.
6. Perform random field checks covering such items as: wage and hour provisions, field conditions, housing conditions, and discrimination.
7. Set up and act as first-round mediators in a "complaint resolution process".

A spokesman for the Department of Human Resources said it is their intention to perform the additional inspections in the spirit of cooperation with farmers and that visits will be in an open and announced manner. They also said such inspections possibly could head off citations by federal officials because farmers would be given a chance to meet the standards through a warning process, rather than being cited during a crash inspection by a federal agent.

Many more farm workers are now covered under federal minimum wage rate laws which, effective January 1st of this year, call for a $2 per hour wage to be paid by all employers who use 500 man days of farm labor in any calendar quarter of the preceding year.

Marinating Meat

Marinating meat is probably as ancient as the art of cooking itself Scholars say that the caveman probably invented it when he found that soaking the tough meat of bear, deer or mountain goat in berry juice made it more flavorful and tender

Restricted meat imports urged

WASHINGTON, D C The American National Cattlemen's Association recently asked President Ford to see that 1976 imports under the Meat Import law are kept well below the law's "trigger" point.

The letter from ANCA president Wray Finney followed an earlier letter pretesting the fact that the Administration let imports in 1975 exceed the "trigger" point by 27 million pounds, or 2 3 percent.

As previously reported, the State Department has been instructed to negotiate voluntary arrangements with beef supplying countries to assure that 1976 imports subject to the law will fall below the trigger level for quota imposition. The trigger point for 1976 is 1,233 million pounds (product weight).

In his most recent letter, Finney asked Ford specifically to instruct his negotiators to keep the 1976 restraint total at 1,200 million pounds or less. This would provide a "cushion" of at least 33 million pounds below the trigger level.

"It is very obvious that the narrow margin of 1 7 million pounds between the trigger point and the negotiated restraint level in 1975 was not anywhere near adequate," Finney told Ford "The fact that actual imports exceed the trigger point by 27 million pounds last year makes it clear that the 'cushion' this year should be at least 33 million pounds. The need for a margin of this size is particularly great in view of the import monitoring problems which became apparent in 1975.

"It is imperative that imports in 1976 be well within the levels provided in the framework of the Meat Import Law. We strongly urge that you instruct your negotiators to see that the intent of the law is followed. This means setting the restraint level at 1,200 million pounds or less "

Layer production decreases

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania layers produced 288 million eggs during January, down one percent from the previous month and one percent below a year earlier according to the Crop Reporting Service.

The January average of 14 million layers is down two percent from the previous month and one percent below a year ago.

Egg production per 100 layers during January totaled 2,052 eggs compared with 2,046 a month earlier and 2,062 a year earlier.

The nation's laying flock produced 5,514 million eggs during January, one percent below a year earlier. Layers on hand during January averaged 280 million, down two percent from a year earlier. The average rate of lay during the month was up one percent from a year ago.

Veal contains vitamins low in calories

By Sara Beck,
Consumer Specialist

A lot for a little. That's what you get with veal — a lot of nutrition for few calories. A 3½ oz. serving of cooked lean veal (that's considered an average serving) provides not only 33 grams of protein but considerable amounts of the important B-vitamins and minerals as well, and all for only 213 calories.

Beef, calf and veal are all produced from cattle, but they come from animals of different maturity levels. The most desirable veal comes from milk-fed calves less than 3 months old. After this age, calves begin to eat grass and this darkens the flesh.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture shield-shaped grade mark can serve as your guide to eating quality when buying veal. U.S. Prime is the highest grade of veal, followed by U.S. Choice, the grade most commonly found at the retail level. These two grades are more flavorful than the lower ones.

Veal has grayish pink lean which is very smooth textured and velvet. The very little fat it has is clear, firm and white. The bones are porous, soft and red. Veal is prized for its delicate flavor. Like the flesh of any immature animal, veal is likely to be dry unless moisture is applied during cooking. For this reason, even the most tender cuts should never be broiled.

Because veal has no natural fat covering and no marbling of fat in the lean, roasted cuts may need larding (covering or stuffing with bits of bacon or other fat before cooking.) Unlike beef, veal is always cooked well-done or until juices run clear with no traces of pink — about 170 degrees F. on a meat thermometer or 30 to 40 minutes per pound, depending on thickness of meat, in a 325 degree oven. Most veal cuts are best braised. However, thin cuts are delicious sauteed; and ground veal can be pan fried or broiled.

The retail cuts of veal are comparable to beef in shape but smaller in size.

Veal leg round steak is sometimes labeled as veal scaloppine when thinly sliced, pounded and cut into small squares. Escalope is the French equivalent of the Italian scaloppine and the English have changed escalope to collop - a term you may occasionally run into. Germans and Austrians call the same cut Schnitzel.

Like all foods, veal contains some bacteria. Therefore, it should be cooked, stored and handled properly to destroy or to prevent the growth of harmful bacteria. Fresh veal chops, cutlets and roasts can be kept in the refrigerator at temperatures between 35 to 40 degrees F. or lower for 3 to 5 days. These same cuts will keep in the freezer at 0 degrees F. or lower for 6 to 9 months. Ground veal, stew meat and variety meats should be kept in the refrigerator for only 1 or 2 days, but they may be kept in the freezer for 3 to 4 months. If unground cuts of veal have been prepackaged in plastic film, they can be stored unopened in the refrigerator for up to one week or in the freezer for 1 or 2 weeks. Veal to be frozen should be wrapped closely and sealed tightly in moisture resistant materials.

To thaw raw veal, leave it in the freezer wrap and place it in the refrigerator. This method will keep the outside of the food cold while the inside thaws, thus preventing the growth of harmful bacteria.

One important thing to remember when handling veal, as with all foods, is to use strict cleanliness for persons and surroundings. This is the best way to prevent the contamination of foods and the spread of foodborn illness in the home.

Ag-safety Tip

Property losses sustained in farm fires annually top a quarter-billion dollars. The annual cost of all types of accidents on farms, including fires, is about $3 billion.

Freezer can be worth its cost

Many inquiries are made to the Home Economics Extension Office about frozen food says Mrs Ruth M. Hand, Extension Home Economist in Schuylkill Co.

Frozen foods have been with us a long time — from the old ice-salt systems used to freeze food back in the mid-1800's or the frozen "boil in a bag" convenience foods of today. There were patents for freezing fish granted in England in 1842 and in this country as far back as 1861. Quick freezing processes and equipment development began in the 1920's but frozen foods for home use did not become important until 1940. From "then 'til now" however, more than a 10 billion pound per year freezing industry has developed in this country with a volume exceeded only by canning.

Today, the frozen food locker, the home freezer, and even the freezing-it-yourself methods have become common-place to the homemaker. Whatever type of frozen storage you use — you should "make it pay." Consumers need to know some of the basic principles about freezing food, according to Dr. Evelyn Johnson of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Extension Service.

What is Freezing?

It's subjecting food in vapor, moisture-proof packages to the coldest practical temperature possible — 20 degrees F or below, and stored at 0 degrees F. Freezing merely stops or slows the growth of organisms that cause spoilage, (until the frozen food is thawed) it does not kill the organisms (as in the canning process). DID YOU KNOW — Any food that can be canned, can be frozen. Some things that may seem questionable to can, freeze well Examples are. vegetable mixtures for which you do not have canning instructions; and seafood, bananas (may be mashed or blended), table-ready dishes (casseroles), meal leftovers in individual portions as well as home-prepared convenience foods and baby foods.

All cheeses can be frozen but changes may occur in texture. Cheddar cheese may crumble, but pimento cheese mixture freezes well. Frozen milk will keep up to 4 months without losing nutritive value. Freezing does alter taste and appearance. Food that has thawed can be refrozen if thawed in the refrigerator; contains ice crystals or was thawed properly, cooked and immediately refrozen.

Frozen vegetables and meats that turn white or brown on the surface are not necessarily spoiled. Exposure to oxygen in air turns meat darker and freezer-burns (dries out) exposed surfaces. This is due to poor packaging or punctures by meat bones or in routine handling.

On Packaging For Freezer

Read the manufacturer's labels when shopping for freezer materials. If purchasing freezer containers make sure the seal or lid will fit tight. It needs to be air-tight, leakproof, odorproof, moisture proof, and vaporproof for highest quality food.

Remember that liquids and wet packs require ½ inch head space in half-pints and pints and ¾ inch in 1½ pints. It's important, always to remember head space is necessary in your container ... freezing is liquid expansion, so allow room.

If you freeze food in milk and cheese cartons, regular weight aluminum foil quality may remain good for a short time, but best packaging keeps best quality.

For best use of your freezer it is important to shape packages to fit the available space. Foil wrap in convenient shape to pack ... loose pecans in bags will freeze and pack to conform to shapes needed for fitting into freezer area. If you make the most of your freezer, you can make it pay. If you have questions concerning freezing, contact the Extension Home Economist.

About the Home Freezer

LOCATION is important ... if you locate it in, or near, the kitchen, you'll use it more often. Check to see that it is placed away from a back wall so there's adequate air circulation. Lack of air or dust buildup can overheat the motor and add to the operational costs.

OPERATING COSTS per pound of food are less if the freezer is kept at least three-fourths full at all times. Keeping a frozen food longer than 8-10 months is not economical — food needs to be used on a rotating basis. Frequent opening of the freezer door increases the cost of operation.

High electric rates, poorly operating freezers, or inefficient use of freezer space or materials will all add to the cost. In some cases, home freezing adds up to 53 cents a pound to the cost of food.

For a copy of Food For Your Freezer send a card to Mrs. Ruth M. Hand, Extension Home Economist, Schuylkill County Extension Service, P. O. Box 404, Schuylkill Haven, PA 17972.

DENVER Colo. - The American Sheep Industry's "Blueprint for Expansion" program advanced still another step when leaders of the industry agreed on specific assignments to carry out the nine areas of the newly established Blueprint campaign.

The 13 men, which included presidents and secretaries of major sheep organizations, once again convened at Winrock Farms near Morrilton, Ark., on February 17 and 18, where the Blueprint program was originally launched in June, 1975.

The meeting was held in order to review the progress of the Blueprint program to date and to identify specific tasks necessitating action in the near future to help spur new growth in the sheep industry over a 10-year period.

CURTISS PRODUCES NATION'S FIRST ALL ANGUS A.I. BEEF BULL BOOK

Curtiss Breeding Service, one of the nation's largest beef and dairy bull studs, has just produced a full-color all-Angus beef bull book for A.I., the nation's first such book.

The new Curtiss Angus Bull Book is called the "1978 Planning Guide," since cows bred in 1976 will produce calves that will reach yearling market age or herd replacement size in 1978. This year's breeding program will determine cattlemen's position in the 1978 beef market.

The new Angus book gives complete data on 23 selected Angus sires available exclusively from Curtiss. The bulls are pictured in full color.

A special feature of the Curtiss Bull Book for 1976 is the individual sire evaluation placed on each bull's structural soundness and type traits. The trait scores were assigned on a 1 to 7 basis by an official classifier for the American Angus Association.

Curtiss is offering the 1976 Angus Bull Book at no charge to all who request it by writing to: Curtiss Breeding Service, Division of Searle Agriculture Inc., Cary, Illinois 60013.

SHELL INTRODUCES XLP-30 PROGRAM

XLP-30, a thirty-day prenatal litter conditioning program for extra litter production, has been introduced by Shell Chemical Company, Animal Health.

The XLP-30 program, which involves starting sows and gilts on an XLP-30 feeding program thirty days prior to farrowing, can improve the production efficiency of a farrowing operation by increasing pigs born alive, birth weights, survival to market, and rate of weight gain.

"XLP-30 prenatal conditioning now gives the producer a 30-day head start on developing strong, healthy litters that can deliver extra litter production efficiency from birth to market."

Complete swine gestation feeds and supplements for an XLP-30 program are now available from feed manufacturers. For further information contact your feed manufacturer or write Shell Animal Health, 2401 Crow Canyon Road, San Ramon, CA 94583.

Pa. grocery prices surveyed

HARRISBURG - Completing a six-month supermarket survey report, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture recently disclosed that retail prices for 15 "shopping bag" items from August, 1975 to January, 1976 rose an average of 17 cents from $9.23 to $9.40.

The study, prepared by the department's Bureau of Rural Affairs, showed the average state shopping bag cost dipped to a low of $9.13 in September and then rose slowly through December to $9.21. A sharp increase during the last month of the study brought the price to $9.40.

Overall, the six-month state shopping bag average was $9.22. In a breakdown of seven regions in the Commonwealth, the highest regional shopping bag average was in the Northeast at $9.58. The lowest average was recorded in the south central counties at $8.89.

Products which basically increased in price over the six months were cabbage, fresh pears, coffee, eggs and American cheese. Products which decreased in price were potatoes, canned corn, sugar, shortening, whole chicken and ground beef. Several products which followed no basic trend during the six months were canned peaches, bread, cornflakes and toilet paper.

For the six months analysis, shoopers in urban stores saved five percent over the cost of the same shopping bag in rural stores.

By purchasing storebrand versus namebrand selected shopping bag items, shoppers saved nine percent during the six months.

The price spread between urban and rural stores held at about six percent for most of the six months. However, the difference dropped to three percent in December. By January, shopping bag items cost $9.22 in urban stores as against $9.78 in rural stores, the difference again rising to almost six percent

The comparison in prices between storebrand and namebrand was made with nine of the 15 shopping bag items. Storebrand items averaged a nine percent savings in August and January. During the intervening months, the spread varied from four to 11 percent.

Exports of farm products may top $22 billion in fiscal 1976

U.S. agricultural exports in fiscal 1976 may slightly exceed the $21.6 billion exported in fiscal 1975. This total is slightly below the $22.7 billion forecast in November because of a decline in price prospects. Export volume of major bulk commodities should total about 105 million metric tons - slightly over the fiscal 1974 record and a fifth above 1975's total. Unit value of exports will average lower for the important grains, soybeans, and oilseed products.

Wheat and feed grain exports are expected to reach record volumes of over 36 million and over 44 million metric tons, respectively. Soybean exports could reach fiscal 1974's record of 14 million tons. Cotton, tobacco, and oilcake and meal exports are expected to remain near fiscal 1975 volumes, and rice and vegetable oil shipments will decline.

Shipments to the Soviet Union will show the greatest increase in fiscal 1976, and exports to Eastern Europe, North Africa, and South Asia will increase also. Exports to Southeast and East Asia (excluding the People's Republic of China) will increase slightly in fiscal 1976 Lower prices will cause a drop in the value of U.S agricultural exports to Western Europe although export volume will be greater. Exports to the Western Hemisphere will be lower in fiscal 1976. West Asia is sharply cutting back its imports of U.S. farm products, and shipments to the PRC are unlikely to exceed $2 million, compared with the fiscal 1975 total of $335 million.

The value of fiscal 1976 U.S. agricultural imports is expected to exceed last year's $9.58 billion. Coffee and banana prices are up sharply; and much more vegetable oils will be imported, though at substantially lower prices.

The agricultural trade balance is thus expected to exceed $12 billion in fiscal 1976 and to be the largest surplus ever.

Selecting Cookware

When selecting new cookware, look for pans of good quality which will last for many years of constant use You're probably better off selecting individual pans than a whole set Cookware needs depend on family size and cooking habits. Most beginning cooks and small family homemakers find that a large, medium and several small saucepans, plus a large and small frypan and a Dutch oven are adequate
